'This isn't our war'

U.S. troops balk at patrol

PHU BAI, South Vietnam (UPI) — About 50 U.S. infantrymen of a 12-man company refused for a stubborn hour and a half Wednesday when ordered to go out and patrol the rolling hills around Phu Bai, 42 miles south of the embattled Demilitarized Zone (DMZ). "We're not going," they shouted. "This isn't our war. We're not going out in the bush. Why should we fight if nobody back home gives a damn about us?"

In the end, however, all 12 men of Charlie Company under the command of their battalion commander, a lieutenant colonel, reluctantly joined the truck convoy to the hills southwest of the city.

The incident began with the usual grumbling of frustrated American soldiers fighting an unpopular war. All afternoon, the GIs complained to one another.

"Man, the war stinks," they said. "It's a damn waste of time. Why the hell are we fighting for something we don't believe in?"

With the knowledge and fear of at least three North Vietnamese divisions within one day's march, the frustration of fighting a war no one back home seems to care about and the hot sun beating down, the soldiers turned their pent up anger on their company commander. But they relented.

France's resumption talk 'one-sided', official says

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With the Pentagon claiming the Saigon government had taken the initiative in the heavy South Vietnam fighting, the United States Wednesday termed "one-sided" France's urging that U. S. negotiators return to the Paris peace talks.

"We consider the statement one-sided," said State Department spokesman Robert J. McCloskey. "It appears to us that it picks up roughly the statements made by the North Vietnamese and representatives of the Provisional Revolutionary Government (Viet Cong) in Paris."

The State Department said that the charge of affairs of the French embassy, Emmanuel de Maugeire, had been summoned to meet with undersecretary of State U. Alexis Johnson to hear a U. S. protest that the French statement was partial to the Communists.

Pentagon spokesman Jerry W. Friedheim, meantime, said South Vietnamese forces had taken the initiative in blunting the powerful North Vietnamese invasion southward across the Demilitarized Zone.

"The initiative does lie with the South Vietnamese," Friedheim told reporters, while cautioning that this did not mean the battle had been won. "I don't think we should overcharacterize this," he said.

The White House meantime reiterated that the North Vietnamese invasion had not changed U. S. policy for troop withdrawals, but indicated the next troop cut would depend on the level of Communist activity in the South.

Press Secretary Ronald Ziegler said President Nixon would make his next decision "based upon what he sees at that time." The President, Ziegler said, would make another announcement of a troop cut the last week of this month.

Anti-buser splits with Nixon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A senior House Republican who co-sponsored President Nixon's busing moratorium legislation abruptly denounced the proposal as unconstitutional Wednesday on grounds it would "prostitute the courts."

Rep. William M. McCulloch, R-Ohio, the ranking GOP member of the House Judiciary Committee, emphatically broke with the administration on the Nixon approach which he had first endorsed.

McCulloch, long known as a civil rights advocate, repudiated the administration measure as acting Attorney General Richard M. Kleindienst appeared before the committee on behalf of the legislation.

clearing house for inter-related agencies, groups, services — paid and volunteer, private and governmental — that are operating in some specialized area of women's needs."

"I think it's wasted money," Mullen said. "Anything you want, I can't imagine you not getting it."

Rep. Patricia Crawford, R-Delaware, a commission member, told the committee two thirds of the women working in the same jobs as men are paid lower salaries.

"I'm really surprised to hear there's any discrimination at all," Mullen said.

Homer Floyd, executive director of the Human Relations Commission, agreed with the women's statements and noted that colleges and universities often apply more strict standards to women students.

"If you've got a young girl on campus," Mullen said, "you've got to protect her. If you let her run around, she'll get into all kinds of trouble."

Floyd, who requested $2.1 million for the coming fiscal year, said his commission needed the money to combat discrimination against women and minority groups in education and employment.

Several committee members said they were dissatisfied with the way the commission had handled racial problems in school.

When Floyd asked the members to read his entire report before making any judgment, Rep. Guy Kistler, R-Cumberland, broke in and said:

"As far as I'm concerned, you have a beautiful bunch of rhetoric, and I'm going to vote accordingly."

In the morning session, the committee indicated it was reluctant to appropriate money for a special

Red tanks attack after base shelled

SAIGON (UPI) — A Communist task force backed by tanks launched a major attack today against the embattled Binh Long province capital of An Loc, 60 miles north of Saigon.

The attack followed a pre-dawn strike by Communist rockets on the U. S. northern base at Da Nang and Phu Bai. At least eight American Airmen were wounded at Da Nang and casualties were unknown at Phu Bai.

The U. S. command reported American B52 heavy bombers hit North Vietnamese air fields for the first time ever as part of the counterattack to halt the 13 day Communist offensive.

While B52s, using radar, can operate above the heavy clouds that have grounded the smaller U. S. jet fighter-bombers. During air strikes on North Vietnam in 1966-67, the B52s hit only supply lines and supply dumps.

The Communists launched the attack on the Binh Long province capital Thursday morning under a barrage of more than 500 rocket and mortar rounds and moved toward the city from three directions, field reports said.

About 20 miles to the south, a relief force of elite South Vietnamese paratroopers and armored units was still trying to push its way up Highway 13 to reinforce the 12,000 South Vietnamese soldiers already in the An Loc sector.

Field reports said a South Vietnamese colonel was killed in the battle today when his helicopter was riddled with ground fire over the town of Chon Thanh, 40 miles north of Saigon.

Early sketchy reports said at least 100 Communist troops were known dead in the An Loc battle while South Vietnamese losses were at least 7 dead and 20 wounded.

U. S. Gen. Nguyen Van Minh, commander of the 888 corps area, the 11 provinces surrounding Saigon, rushed to the An Loc battlefield from his forward field command post at Lai Khe, 30 miles north of the capital.

Heavy air and artillery strikes were ordered on the Communist attackers, who had PT76 tanks and other armored vehicles, field reports said. At least nine tanks were destroyed in the first hours of the battle.

According to initial field reports the attacks in Binh Dinh province on the highlands coast, which had been heavily infiltrated by guerrillas, were the largest in months.

They may have signaled the opening of a new front in the 13-day Communist offensive. No casualty reports were immediately available.

Nine B52 raids struck Communist positions within South Vietnam late Wednesday and early today. Two of them were within two miles of the besieged provincial capital of An Loc, 60 miles north of Saigon.

The Communists fired 70 rockets into the city of Qui Nhon, capital of Binh Dinh and blew up several bridges along Route 19 leading from Qui Nhon to the western highlands, according to field reports.

UMW official cited in killing

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — William Jackson Prater, a United Mine Workers official, was arrested Wednesday in connection with the murders of UMW leader Joseph Yablonski, his wife and daughter and held under $200,000 bond after a hearing before a U. S. commissioner.

Prater, of LaFollette, Tenn., was arrested in Lake City, Tenn., without incident.

Prater, 52, UMW District 19 field representative, appeared before U. S. Commissioner Harvey Duggin in Knoxville.

Attorneys for the Justice Department said they would ask immediately for a removal hearing before U. S. District Court Judge Robert L. Taylor. They said they would try to get a hearing today but had no idea if it would be granted that early.

The gray-haired Prater arrived at the federal building here shortly after 7 p.m. EST with his attorney, Lee Asbury of Jacksboro, Tenn.

Prater was informed of the charges against him: conspiring to obstruct justice, conspiring to obstruct a criminal investigation and conspiracy to obstruct the rights of a union member.

William J. Prater

The bond under which he was placed required the posting of $200,000 cash. It appeared he would not make it and would spend the night in Knox County jail, according to FBI sources.

FBI director J. Edgar Hoover announced the arrest earlier in Washington.

Pa. joblessness drops by 12,000

HARRISBURG (UPI) — Pennsylvania unemployment dropped by 12,000 persons in March, but the decline was not as big as in past years.

Paul J. Smith, secretary of Labor and Industry, told a news conference Wednesday the unemployment rate fell from 6.1 per cent in February to 5.8 per cent in March.

He said this leaves about 290,000 unemployed persons out of a total civilian work force of 4.7 million in Pennsylvania.

Adjusted for seasonal factors, the unemployment rate edged slightly upward from 5.4 per cent in February to 5.5 in March.

"This means," Smith said, "that although unemployment went down during this period the decline was less than it normally has been in past years."

Smith's latest unemployment statistics from February showed the highest rate in the Bedford area, a region of persistent unemployment. The percentage was 16.8 or about 2,500 persons in Bedford.

Philadelphia had 162,000 unemployed, or about 6 per cent, and Pittsburgh listed 67,000, or about 6.8 per cent.

Smith said seasonal layoffs and furloughs in the steel industry accounted for a substantial portion of the unemployment across the state.

About 10 per cent of all unemployment benefits were paid to steelworkers, he said.

Aspirin best after all

ROCHESTER, Minn. — Aspirin is the best pain reliever among common drugs, a Mayo Clinic study has found. The study also found at least two prescription pain relievers, including the widely used Darvon, to be hardly better than an inert pill. The study comes on the heels of an announcement by the FTC that it will investigate advertising claims for nonprescription pain relievers.

Muskie now 'underdog'

QUINCY, Mass. — Muskie said he was an "underdog" in the race for the Democratic nomination. He said that in the next 13 days he would divide his time between Massachusetts and Pennsylvania. Both states' presidential primaries are April 25, and Muskie said he hoped to revive his bid for the nomination.

Mafia leader grilled

NEW YORK — Police questioned Carlo Gambino, the elderly "boss of bosses" of East Coast organized crime, in connection with seven gangland slayings in New York in 12 days. Police protection was extended to actor Jerry Orbach and his wife Maria, who had been collaborating with a slain mobster, Joseph "Crazy Joey" Gallo, on his memoirs. Detectives also were reported to be guarding several gangland figures.

Union asks P.C. nationalization

WASHINGTON — One of the nation's largest rail unions called on congress to nationalize the financially troubled Penn Central Railroad. Al Chesser, president of the United Transportation Union, contended "there's no way in God's world the Penn Central can ever come out of bankruptcy" proceedings. Therefore, he asserted, "we urgently recommend congressional action now to remove the railroad from the private sector and place it in the hands of public officials."

Fire-resistant clothing urged

WASHINGTON — Sen. Richard S. Schweiker, R-Pa., sharply criticized the Commerce Department Wednesday for "moving like a glacier" to set up strong requirements for fire-resistant clothing. The Department has had at least five years to establish the necessary standards, Schweiker said, but it has advanced "lethargically. I don't think they have done their job." The Pennsylvania senator introduced legislation which, he said, would require the department to "speed up its proceedings to impose flammability standards for all clothing of all age groups," including children up to 12 and the elderly.

Red Ping Pong team in 'bloom'

DETROIT (UPI) — China's ping pong players, making good a winter promise to visit the United States when the "blossoms are in bloom," arrived for a two-week tour Wednesday and vowed to do their part to improve Sino-American relations.

The Chinese, the first sports team from mainland China ever to visit the United States, saw very little of America in their first hours in Detroit, going directly from the airport to the hotel for lunch and then to their rooms to rest.

"Our delegation has come to the United States in the spirit of 'friendship first, competition second,'" Chiang Tse-Tung, leader of the Chinese tennis team which is considered the best in the world, said.

"The Chinese were not particularly impressed with their first view of America, according to Graham Stez and promoter of the visit.

"They were not overwhelmed," Steenhoven said. "Being world champions, many have been in many other countries. They have seen automobiles before. Things aren't new to them and they're not awed."

The 14-member tennis team, accompanied by 14 Chinese newsmen and translators, is repaying a visit made to China a year ago by the U.S. table tennis team. That visit opened the Peking door for President Nixon's historic China meetings in February.

The Chinese team arrived here aboard the jet clipper "Friendship" from Canada, where they played a series of exhibition matches.

Humphrey aims at youth vote

READING, Pa. (UPI) — U.S. Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey took aim on the young people's vote Wednesday in his campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination and continued to apply the heat to the Nixon administration.

"Make no mistake about it," he said. "We face an unemployment crisis today."

"There are thousands of important tasks that young people can and should be performing. Our neighborhoods need to be made livable. We need staff for large summer recreation programs, hospital assistance, teacher aides, more and better trained law enforcement officers."

"We need an expanded public service program and people working in a wide range of pollution prevention programs."

"I have proposed a program that would create one million new jobs in important community service work — jobs with a future and jobs that urgently need to be done."

"It would provide, among other things," Humphrey explained, "for a four-fold expansion of the Neighborhood Youths Corps to insure that young people are not doomed to summers of idleness and despair."

"The Nixon administration already has delayed too long. The need for action is urgent. And the time for action is now."

In Pittsburgh Tuesday, the Minnesota senator promised to "really put the heat" on the administration as he strengthened his bid for the labor vote. He accused the administration of being a government "of the money, by the money and for the money."

Attorney general sets precedent with PUC

HARRISBURG (UPI) — In a precedent-setting move designed to aid customers, the attorney general's office Wednesday asked to intervene in a public utility case.

Thomas J. Oravetz, deputy attorney general, said it would "add another voice and shed more light on the issues" if the Public Utility Commission (PUC) permits his office to act as the people's advocate.

The motion for intervention came as the PUC neared the end of hearings on a proposed rate increase of almost 18 percent requested last year by the Philadelphia Suburban Water Co.

Oravetz said the "common law and statutes clearly set forth the attorney general's basis for intervening."

Oravetz said the 18 percent proposed rate increase needs the closest scrutiny in view of the federal guidelines.

Robert H. Young, counsel for the company, said he had "difficulty finding any authority allowing the attorney general to intervene in the public interest."

He said the commission's rules require that appeals to intervene must be submitted before the start of hearings and not when the hearing process is almost at an end.

Young also questioned the statutory authority of the state to appeal in the public interest until the legislature sets up a consumer protection agency to represent the public.

The PUC's own counsel, Philip Kalodner, sided with the attorney general's office on the question.

ITT subpoena bid fails

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Angered by President Nixon's refusal to let White House aides testify, Democrats on the Senate Judiciary Committee tried but failed by a single vote Wednesday to subpoena them for questioning about the tangled ITT affair.

With Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Miss., the committee chairman, abstaining, three motions to order the aides to appear as witnesses in defiance of the President failed by identical tie votes, with six Democrats for and six Republicans against.

The subpoena effort was directed primarily at Peter J. Flanigan, a special White House assistant with Wall Street ties. It was Flanigan who arranged for an outside consultant's report that became a critical factor in the Justice Department's decision last summer to agree to an out-of-court settlement of an antitrust case against International Telephone and Telegraph Corp. (ITT).

The controversy over that settlement and a purloined memorandum on ITT stationery linking it with an ITT contribution to the Republican National Convention has held up a Senate confirmation vote on Richard G. Kleindienst to be attorney general.

As the White House said earlier he would, Nixon invoked the doctrine of executive privilege Wednesday, citing a "firmly established" principle that members of the President's immediate staff may not account for their actions before congressional committees.

In a letter to Eastland, presidential counsel John W. Dean III assured the committee that Flanigan's only role in the ITT matter was to obtain independent financial expertise at the request of Richard W. McLaren, then chief of the Justice Department's antitrust division, and that Flanigan did not contribute "directly or indirectly" to the outside consultant's findings.

This so aroused Sens. Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C., and Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., — powerful Democrats who had been friendly to the Kleindienst nomination — that they announced they would vote against confirmation unless the President allowed Flanigan to appear.

"If the President wants to make his nominee for attorney general a sacrificial lamb on the altar of executive privilege, that will be his responsibility and not mine," Ervin said before offering his motion to subpoena Flanigan, presidential assistant William Timmons and other White House and Justice Department personnel with knowledge of the ITT matter.

With Ervin and Byrd joining the anti-Kleindienst Democrats on the committee, they needed only Eastland's vote to win.

But the chairman abstained, presumably on the ground he still believes that the month-long inquiry has produced nothing to question Kleindienst's qualifications to succeed John N. Mitchell.

First black joins FCC

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon Wednesday named Benjamin L. Hooks, a Memphis attorney and Baptist minister, as the first black man on the Federal Communications Commission.

Subject to Senate confirmation, Hooks will serve a seven-year term on the commission which regulates radio, television, telephone and other communications industries.

Hooks, described as a political independent, was chosen to succeed Robert T. Bartley, a Democrat. The act which established the Commission in 1934, requires it to be bipartisan with no more than four of the seven members from one political party.

Hooks, 47, is a board member of the NAACP.

Angela gag rule even gags gag

SAN JOSE, Calif. (UPI) — Judge Richard R. Arnason imposed a sweeping new gag rule Wednesday in the Angela Davis case, so stringent that attorneys were not even allowed to discuss the rule itself.

Defense and prosecution lawyers, who had been allowed moderate leeway in clarifying legal points for reporters were prohibited under the new rule from saying anything at all about the case.

One of the lawyers, asked what prompted the new order, said "sorry, I can't even discuss the gag rule."

There was no explanation of the order, which came two days after Arnason cancelled the morning session of the trial to hold a closed conference on "numerous" subjects he refused to disclose.

Following the conference, he asked all the jurors in Miss Davis' murder kidnap trial whether they had read news stories of the murder of black militant James E. Carr in San Jose last week.

Carr had Black Panther ties and was a former cellmate of black revolutionary George Jackson. His mother-in-law is a friend of Miss Davis.

Miss Davis' supporters complained bitterly that some stories about Carr's death "linked" it with the trial in an effort to discredit Miss Davis.

In testimony Wednesday, a sheriff's lieutenant said he heard the Marin County Courthouse kidnapers use the word "Soledad" but added, "I can't recall in what context."

Lt. Ronald A. Retana, one of the officers held at bay in a second-floor corridor after the kidnapers came out of a courtroom with five hostages, said he also heard the word "revolutionaries."

Physicist warns U.S. near energy crisis

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Physicist Ralph E. Lapp warned Wednesday the United States faces a severe energy crisis which by 1985 could have consumers pleading with utilities to build more nuclear electric plants.

A series of power crises could prompt a backlash from those of "the hard hat mentality" that would endanger the entire environmental movement, Lapp told the House Interior Committee.

"The challenge is one of meeting the nation's power demands and at the same time producing minimum — not zero — impact on the environment," said Lapp, a writer on nuclear and space matters.

Bombers still plague Ulster

BELFAST (UPI) — More bombs exploded in Northern Ireland Wednesday and former Premier Brian Faulkner demanded the British take military action against Irish Republican Army (IRA) strongholds.

In Londonderry, a bomb severely damaged a building housing a dry cleaning shop and damaged a house across the street. At Kircubbin, in County Londonderry, another bomb wrecked a car owned by a reserve policeman. No casualties were reported in either of the blasts.

Faulkner who was forced to resign as Premier when Britain took over direct rule of Northern Ireland, demanded action against the IRA strongholds when he met Wednesday for the first time with top British officials here, Secretary of State William Whitelaw.

Political sources said the meeting could be crucial to British efforts to conciliate minority Roman Catholics and majority Protestants without risking a militant Protestant backlash.

America is becoming increasingly dependent on foreign energy supplies, he said, and within 10 years the nation will import natural gas and oil worth $20 billion which "could have a profound effect on our balance of payments."

Following the testimony which was described by Rep. John Dellenbach, R-Ore., as "startling," Lapp moved to the Senate Space Committee where he testified against development of the space shuttle requested by President Nixon.

Lapp said payloads launched into orbit in the reusable shuttle "will average 10 times more expensive than their weight in solid gold."

During his testimony before the House Interior Committee, which has begun a full-scale investigation of the nation's energy needs, Lapp emphasized that he is in sympathy with the environmental movement.

But he warned that "environmental extremists" must realize they could jeopardize the movement by thoughtlessly blocking needed projects.

Lapp expressed concern about the construction of nuclear plants near large population centers and he called for aggressive safety programs.

Eastland ouster set

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Lobbyists for stricter party loyalty among Senate Democrats said Thursday they have majority support of a proposal that might jeopardize the Judiciary Committee chairmanship of Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Miss.

The 55 Senate Democrats will vote in person or by proxy in their caucus today on a proposal by Sens. Fred R. Harris, D-Okla., and Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., that could deny chairmanships and other seniority benefits to those who fail to meet new loyalty standards.

Phone company boundary overlap irritates residents

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Second in a series of four stories dealing with telephone company boundary lines in West End.)

BY MAUREEN RUFFE
Pocono Record Reporter

EFFORT — In 1959 another telephone problem developed in the West End when the Commonwealth Telephone Company overlapped the Palmerton boundary and extended additional service to four Effort businessmen.

Residents are wondering why only some of the residents should be so privileged.

According to the Public Utility Commission the situation has recently been clarified. After an investigation into the overlapping service, it was decided once one of the four businessmen was deceased or once the business changed hands, Commonwealth Telephone would be required to remove their overlapping service from that customer.

Also in 1959, a PUC representative said that Commonwealth Telephone Company considered offering extended service from Saylorburg to Kresgeville and Kunkletown.

"At that time a survey indicated that 87 per cent of Saylorburg residents made no calls to Kunkletown and 84 per cent of Saylorburg residents made no calls to Kresgeville," said the Harrisburg engineer. "Eight per cent of these customers only made one call per month to these exchanges."

The engineer said the results of the survey indicated in order to extend service to the Saylorburg customers, the added charges per month per customer (in the Commonwealth Company) would be $2.50.

When asked about the condition of West End telephone equipment, the articulate engineer said the Effort exchange was built in 1956 after the Blue Mountain Telephone Company was taken over by Palmerton.

He said the equipment is not obsolescent and said it takes 85 to 100 years for equipment to deteriorate.

During the past year, two West End service groups, the Western Pocono Jaycees and the Western Pocono Lions Club, have been engaged in efforts to secure extended service for West End residents.

For several months representatives from the two groups tried to work out an equitable solution to the boundary problem with representatives from the three phone companies.

In November the talks came to an abrupt halt when Commonwealth refused to negotiate further on the matter, claiming calling interest was not sufficient to warrant further action.

In December a Commonwealth spokesman said less than one call per customer went from Saylorburg to Kunkletown or Kresgeville per month.

The spokesman also said Saylorburg customers should not be expected to pay a rate increase that would only benefit a minority in the West End. He also said in order to provide EAS to West End customers, substantial expense would be involved in expanding the already outgrown rate bands of Saylorburg customers.

During the Jaycee-Lion talks, Bell Telephone dropped out during the early stages, saying Bell would only negotiate after Commonwealth and Palmerton had reached an agreement.

A spokesman from the Palmerton company had acknowledged a common interest with "992" residents. He indicated his company would cooperate in any way to offer extended service to residents.

Since December, the special telephone committee of the two service groups has considered circulating petitions among West End residents and contacting the PUC about the situation.

In the meantime, the toll charges continue to accumulate and individual residents are forced to fight their own mini-battles with individual telephone companies.

NEXT: Effort resident Eugene Lynn talks about his recent attempt to force Bell Telephone Company to cross over the Palmerton boundary in order to provide him with a Stroudsburg exchange.

Courts influencing schools Rooney tells educators

BETHLEHEM — The unprecedented influence of recent court decisions upon local school operations have, in effect, "made the courts the newest member of your local school board, the new voice in administrative policy making," Congressman Fred B. Rooney told a conference of high school principals at Lehigh University recently.

"In recent years courts from Virginia to California have delivered decisions which have shaken the very foundations of our public school system. Virtually every aspect of school operations from local tax support for education to the personal appearance of our students has been influenced by the courts."

The Congressman spoke at a dinner meeting of principals, guidance personnel and teachers attending the 26th Lehigh Conference of Secondary School Principals. Educators from Lehigh, Northampton, Monroe, Bucks, Berks and Carbon Counties participated.

Rooney discussed the impact of court decisions on school operations, federal funding of education, and the increased relevancy of education programs to the needs and interests of students.

Changes
Discussing changes that have affected schools and school systems, Rooney commented, "On one hand in many areas of the country and particularly in the big cities, school systems have sought to decentralize. They have worked to return a greater share of the responsibility and control of public schools to the neighborhoods and communities which they serve, and to give parents and students a greater voice in the type of education offered."

"At the same time, however, there has been an extensive movement over the last two decades to consolidate small school districts with limited resources and create larger school systems with substantially greater resources and opportunities to meet the diverse needs of their students. From a total of more than 95,000 school districts in 1940, the gradual joining of neighboring school systems reduced that figure to 40,000 by 1960 and 17,000 today."

"The conflict between these two processes — decentralization of our school administration to preserve local influences, and consolidation to achieve greater equality and reliability of basic support, particularly financing — is readily apparent. It represents one of the major problems which confront us. And this problem is further accentuated by court decisions which have declared the traditional prime source of public school financing — the real estate tax — to be inherently discriminatory and unconstitutional."

"Clearly, there will have to be devised a better method of financing public education. It may require a more progressive form of taxation based upon ability to pay. It will require a broader-based form of taxation involving substantially greater financial input by the individual states and by the federal government.

Rooney also discussed his views on school busing and the Administration's proposals to combat the need for busing.

"When busing was first advanced as a solution," Rooney said, "I envisioned short distance busing between schools in close proximity to one another to accomplish integration of schools which previously were all black or white because of discriminatory enrollment policies. But it soon became apparent that in actual practice, busing involved long-distance transportation of children to schools far beyond their neighborhoods."

DV adult school closes

MILFORD — The Delaware Valley Adult Education Program completed its first year of operation during March.

The 11 courses offered on various evenings during the week afforded about 200 adults the opportunity of an informal learning experience for a 20-week period.

A display of the work of the adults enrolled in the various courses will be held in the Delaware Valley High School library from 7 to 9 p.m., today.

The display will include knitting, sewing, tailoring, oil painting, antiques and photography.

Plans are now being made to expand next year's program. Forms will be available at today's display for suggestions or ideas on next year's program.

has recognized that busing has its flaws. It recently stated that "an objection to transportation of students may have validity when the time or distance of travel is so great as to risk either the health of the children or significantly impinge on the educational process." And, of course, President Nixon has declared his opposition to busing.

"Instead, the President recently told the Nation, the real solution is to increase funding for education to achieve equal educational opportunity for all students. He called for expenditures of $2.5 billion dollars under what he labeled the Equal Educational Opportunities Act of 1972."

"The President's $2.5 billion dollar proposal consists of $1.5 billion already appropriated by Congress under Title I of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act and $1 billion from the Emergency School Assistance Act now in a Senate-House conference."

Further, his Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare outlined the President's program for the Senate Education Subcommittee on March 25th and spoke in terms of only $1.3 billion rather than $2.5 billion. "I think it is clear that the Administration is playing Russian roulette with educational funding... and five of the chambers are empty."

"If the President really wants to face the problem of inequality within our public schools, then he need only call for the full funding of Title I of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act. In his fiscal year 1973 budget he has requested only $1.6 billion of the $6 billion dollars Congress has authorized."

Women's luncheon set for TAD

TOBYHANNA — Mrs. Holly Hemphill, staff assistant for Civilian Personnel Policy and Equal Opportunity, Office of the Assistant Secretary of the Army for Manpower and Reserve Affairs, will be principal speaker at the second annual women's Week luncheon at Tobyhanna Army Depot April 20 in the depot cafeteria.

The luncheon will highlight the Women's Week observance at the local military base. Capping the festivities will be the naming of the "Woman of the Year." Mrs. Mary Louise Joyce of Scranton is chairman of the event.

Mrs. Hemphill, a native of Shawnee, Okla., is engaged in Army-wide aspects of civilian personnel management and the total program for equal opportunity. Working out of her Washington, D.C. office, she specializes in the concerns of women.

She is a 1967 graduate of the University of Oklahoma, where she majored in political science. In July 1967, she became a management intern for the Department of the Army in Washington, D.C.

After a one-year internship, Mrs. Hemphill entered the civilian personnel administration career field and has served in various personnel jobs at operating and staff levels.

Adventure Is Dead?

NATIONAL PARKS
CAMPING and BACKPACKING

A GREAT CO-ED ADVENTURE
FOR TEENAGERS

We'll be camping and backpacking through some of the most spectacular scenery in the United States and Canada, for a teenage adventure you'll never forget!!

This isn't a typical "look out the window as you pass by" type of trip, but a real adventure that will have you exploring and backpacking through areas that the average tourist never gets to see.

Adventurous? — YES!! Uncomfortable? — NO!! Our base camps will be in National Park or Public Campgrounds, most of which have toilet, shower, and laundry facilities. Those who don't wish to backpack on over night excursions into the wilderness areas, may remain at the base camp and enjoy such activities as canoeing, horseback riding, swimming, tennis, and sight seeing.

Meals? — They'll be great!! Steaks, spaghetti, chops, etc., along with fresh vegetables and dessert, all served family style and done just the way you like it. Why? — Because you'll be helping with the cooking. There's no maid service on a camping trip. Just a bunch of great friends to give each other a hand! Our hotels will be first class all the way! The walls are a little thin, the beds a little low, and it's about a two minute walk to the john, — but you'll sleep like a log and swear it's the most comfortable bed in the world.

DATES: The 21-day trip will depart on Tuesday, June 20th, and return on Monday, July 10th, 1972.

PARKS VISITED: U.S.A. Tetons, Yellowstone, Glacier. CANADA: Waterton, Banff, Lake Louise, Jasper.

GROUP SIZE: This small-group camping trip will be limited to 12 students. (and 3 leaders). (The first 12 deposits received).

COST: The complete 3 week adventure cost is $400.00 per student. Includes everything.

What constitutes aggression?

One of the most discouraging aspects of the now suspended Paris peace talks must be the utter refusal of the North Vietnamese contingent to admit they have troops fighting in South Vietnam.

This refusal is vital to their position, though, because it enables them to refer to the U.S. as "aggressors" when we bomb North Vietnamese ports and military installations, without having to explain why they are not aggressors for flooding the south with troops, tanks and other armaments.

Their rationale is confusing, for while they claim the strife in South Vietnam is of a purely civil nature and thus of no concern to outsiders such as the U.S., they insist on the right of communists everywhere — including North Vietnam — to render assistance whenever required to overthrow a "capitalistic, imperialistic regime".

The current offensive is a case in point. During the fighting, South Vietnamese soldiers have captured Russian-built armaments supplied, according to Hanoi, for defense against attack from the South. Why, then, are these armaments being used in the South, if not to aid in a "civil" matter? We were under the impression communist nations unanimously decried "pre-emptive strikes" against a potential aggressor — or so they cried when Israel did just that against a threatening Egypt in 1967.

We cannot condone or be pleased by any escalation in the fighting in Southeast Asia, no matter who does the escalation. We don't like the U.S. stepping up bombing raids in the South, and resuming raids in the North. But we don't like the North sending waves of troops and armaments across the border either.

If the war in Vietnam — and there seems little doubt that's what it is, despite the "civil war" tag — is ever going to end, it will take de-escalation of activity by both sides to do it. The strife is civil in nature? Fine. Let the Viet Cong and South Vietnamese government battle it out.

This is one case when a people doesn't need "a little help from our friends". That "help", from both North Vietnam and America, have made an utter shambles of an entire nation. Help indeed!

Tax fraud worry

It hardly seems fair. After sweating over our federal income tax returns and getting little in return, we decide it's because we don't really know enough about what we're entitled to under this nation's complex tax legislation.

So we turn our records over to professional tax consultants who promise to increase our refunds, and now we discover up to 97 per cent of those returns prepared by tax service firms are fraudulently prepared.

Of course, that amazing statistic was drawn from rather sketchy figures — only 536 returns had been sampled at the time Treasury Secretary John Connally made that revelation — but there seems to be grounds for worry.

The Internal Revenue Service now will check "hundreds, thousands and maybe millions" of returns it had not anticipated checking. The worry is, will they get to ours? What if the firm we employed made an error, honest or otherwise? Will we be liable for the penalties? The government says yes. Another worry.

The only good that may come out of all this is that the IRS has decided the problem is so overwhelming that it had better simplify income tax forms to minimize the need to use commercial services.

Not that we have anything against tax service firms, but we certainly would like to see the income tax form made simpler. We suspect, even though, that it always will take a great deal of complex financial figuring to get anything back from the government once Washington gets its hands on our money.

The Pennsylvania Story

Welfare boom

HARRISBURG — The question being asked with increasing frequency these days: When will Pennsylvania's mushrooming welfare program begin to taper off?

It's a question continually posed to this column by readers throughout the state, and a question being asked more and more in editorials.

Those posing the question — obviously — are not recipients of Pennsylvania's welfare goodies, nor are they the social worker enthusiasts, or the running-scared politicians.

Rather, the questioners are those working taxpayers who foot the bill.

Welfare program

As for an "answer" as to when the great welfare spending program in the Keystone State might taper off, Governor Shapp's five-year projection for increased taxpayer spending as contained in his proposed 1972-73 budget perhaps provides a partial insight into socio-bureaucratic thinking.

For example, for the Department of Public Welfare, the spending projection for the upcoming 1972-73 fiscal year (beginning July 1) is $1,058,537,000 (that's billion — not million).

Looking ahead to 1973-74, His Excellency projects increasing the welfare spending blueprint to $1,139,017,000 — to $1,224,578,000 the following 1974-75 fiscal year.

By 1975-76, the Department of Public Welfare's kitty will have climbed to $1,310,419,000 (increase of more than one-quarter billion dollars over the hoped-for 1972-73 give-away) — if the Governor's spending goes up as he envisions.

And in the last year of the five-year project-tion, the Department of Public Welfare budget will have increased to the picayune figure of $1,397,465,000.

It is obvious that the thought of possibly cutting back spending taxpayer gifts doesn't enter the picture. Those who do the spending (of monies other than their own) apparently consider such a thought bordering on treason!

Interesting to note perhaps is the fact that the spending blueprint for the Department of Public Welfare for the current 1971-72 fiscal year (the first fiscal year of The Shapp Administration) is pegged at $934,926,000 — up nearly $120,000,000 from the preceding 1970-71 fiscal year.

Spending spree

In all of this magnificent spending spree, it is significant to note that the $1,058,537,000 (businessman-turned-Governor) Milton Shapp has requested for the Department of Public Welfare for the 1972-73 fiscal year — exceeds the entire general fund budget for the state as a whole just 10 years ago in fiscal 1962-63!

And incidentally, 1962-63 was the first time in the history of the Keystone State that the State's general fund budget exceeded one billion dollars — a bit in contrast to the $3,645,307,000 the Shapp Administration is asking for the 1972-73 fiscal year.

Nor does His Excellency project any cutbacks in taxpayer spending in the ensuing years of his sojourn at the helm of Pennsylvania's (sinking?) ship of state.

An increase, for example, of more than one-quarter billion dollars in the State's general fund spending is projected for the following 1973-74 fiscal year!

Campaign peculiarities

As long ago as the 1830's, Alexis de Tocqueville noticed something odd, even eerie about American Presidential elections. As the balloting draws near, both the candidates and the voters tend to become increasingly ideological. The stands they take — the candidates in their speeches and public statements, the citizens in their private discussions and arguments — turn increasingly on abstract principle and have less and less to do with the workaday concerns of the rest of the year. As Tocqueville saw it, the ordinary concerns of life were temporarily "suspended" and the election campaign took place in a kind of fictional world of vast moral issues.

And of course this odd, overheated season is on us again. To George McGovern and his supporters, the Vietnam War is not an intricate political and military event, about which, as they very well know, reasonable men have held a variety of views; no, it is "criminal," and one's affirmation of that judgment is the touchstone of virtue.

McGovern himself has had well-publicized doubts about "busing" and indeed sends his own children to all-white private schools. But now, in the fictional ideological world of the campaign, he has to affirm the desirability of busing in absolutist tones, and view doubts about it as a kind of moral leprosy.

And so it goes. We hear, always apocalyptically, about poverty, racism, pollution, drugs, inflation, the crisis in education, the rotting cities, corruption in government, inflation and so on. The politicians reaffirm our solemn commitment to the "survival" of Israel, as if Israel were in any imminent danger of not surviving. Even poor Ed Muskie, who is about as ideological as a loaf of bread, finds himself swept up into this artificial mood. And Richard Nixon doubtless will soon resurface, his own moralisms and idealisms oddly out of focus and hyperbolic. Being a deeply skeptical and practical individual himself, he finds the correct note hard to strike.

The saving thing about America so far has been that the ideological frenzy subsides as soon as the voting is over. "As soon as the choice is determined," wrote Tocqueville, "the ardor is dispelled, calm returns, and the river, which had nearly broken its banks, sinks to its usual level; but who can refrain from astonishment that such a storm should have arisen."

The vast majority of citizens return to their diverse and practical concerns, producing food, building, transporting things from one place to another, organizing and bargaining, pursuing education, seeking pleasure, raising children. In the historical perspective, it is the sum of all these activities, converging in a gigantic vector, that determines the nation's course. The feverish moralizations of the Presidential campaign fade from view like wisps of fog at sunrise.

Nevertheless, a substantial intellectual minority actually desires that we be governed according to the rhetoric of Presidential elections, and feels deeply frustrated because we are not. I have been re-reading, for example, "The Deadlock of Democracy" by Prof. James MacGregor Burns, the clear message of which is that we are "deadlocked" because Presidents, who have proclaimed various ideal goals during the campaign, are frustrated by an unenlightened Congress when in office. Though it is hard to believe, Burns and many academic liberals appear to think that we should be governed by speech writers, and not by the concrete interests of the country as reflected in Congress.

Letters to the Editor

Voices crying in wilderness

Editor, The Record:

The gypsy moth is not "the end of the world" as federal, state and county officials would have us believe. How many voices crying in the wilderness will it take to convince these people that spraying is wrong? Does man really believe that the natural world is so ill-equipped to deal with emergencies?

I would like to quote Curator Alex Nagy in his 1971 Curator's Report in the Hawk Mountain Sanitary Association's newsletter of March 1972. Mr. Nagy is speaking of the amount of light penetrating the forest due to defoliation from the gypsy moth caterpillars.

He says: "If we think back, not so many years ago, the forest probably did not appear too much different. In the early days of this country an equally devastating menace appeared in our forest. I am speaking of the chestnut blight of 1920.

Again, a blunder on man's part introduced to our country an infection which would have horrendous effects on our forest composition. At the time, it looked as though our woodlands were doomed.

But nature, with her ever-changing patterns, was subtly beginning a corrective plan of attack. The forests changed, the chestnuts were replaced fairly quickly, and a new forest type appeared.

So, too, today, the forests will change. Oak being a successional form, will die out and be replaced by more resistant forest types."

Nagy also mentioned how, in spite of protest, spraying was conducted at Hawk Mountain in 1968. On June 19, 1971, sanctuary people saw the first and only honeybee since that year. It is well known that honeybees are vitally important for the pollination of many plants. To top it off, the sanctuary is just as overgrown with gypsy moths as before the spraying!

A good example of how the natural world changes to combat danger (in this case the gypsy moth) is the fact that a lot of bird species that normally do not eat this moth (due to its prickly covering) were observed feeding on them at Hawk Mountain.

Due to respected and knowledgeable people having brought to light the truth about the gypsy moth blight and spraying, one begins to wonder why and how spraying is still allowed. One wonders too, about the integrity of the spraying program. Is it really out of concern for the forest, or is it primarily because certain areas (specifically the Poconos) would lose resort business due to people shying away from defoliated areas?

Perhaps the above is a strong accusation, but it is about time that truth took precedence and that the majority of people are listened to.

Pornography dooming America?

Editor, The Record:

In the last two years the number of smut peddlers has increased over 800 per cent.

How long can our town and America survive if hard core pornography continues to increase at this rate?

Police officials have said over and over that there is a direct relationship between pornography and crimes of violence and the lack of morals in our youth.

Charles H. Keating Jr. has been appointed by President Nixon to head the Citizens for Decent Literature campaign. He feels we should concentrate on the public law officials in our state capitals to demand that they enforce a law banning the sale of this literature.

Please write to Atty. Gen. J. Shane Creamer and Gov. Milton J. Shapp. Ask them to use their personal prestige and leadership to call all of our law enforcement officials together so that they can take specific legal measures to halt the spread of obscenity in Pennsylvania.

Younger people should be taxed

Editor, The Record:

In regard to Mr. Johnson's letter on March 16.

I agree with Mr. Johnson. I am a young person, compared to Mr. Johnson, and believe if we must be taxed it should be the younger ones. And after retiring age these taxes should be stopped.

Mr. Johnson wasn't the only person Mr. Fetherman was rude to. He hung up on me.

If we pay taxes to employ those in office we deserve a decent answer.

Also my husband who is disabled was charged a 1972 occupation tax of $10 and hasn't worked a day this year. This was taken out of vacation pay due him from 1971. So we also felt the extra tax bite.

Maybe if enough people would get up and yell, something would be done.

To enter one's home and take a TV, range and refrigerator seems like a little of Hitler's play to me.

I thought only wages could be garnished for taxes? Or have they made this a new rule too?

Recoils from Tocks 'Horror'

Editor, The Record:

It is with shock that I learn from The Pocono Record it is claimed that nuclear plants need Tocks Dam. Also, from six to 21 more dams would be needed in the Delaware Valley and its tributaries.

Sticking water from all those dams can lead only to enormous mud flats on the borders of the dams. In addition, the generators will spew forth poisons to a degree that the ecology of the valley will be practically destroyed.

Gone will be hunting, fishing, the summer residents, not to mention the permanent residents, whose tax money provides for the needs of the various communities of the Delaware Valley. The Stroudsburgs could become ghost towns.

Some recommenders must be out of their heads. It necessary to oppose this destructive horror, Tocks Dam, more than ever before.

Agrees with service complaint

Editor, The Record:

This is in reply to DEAD, East Stroudsburg, who complained of poor service at the General Hospital of Monroe County.

I agree that some of the callous and indifferent treatment received is inexcusable. My particular gripe is on weekends when doctors don't want to be bothered, so, in desperation, you go or take your child to the emergency room at the hospital.

I have had between four and five encounters there and one was worse than the other. You might be dying, have a father dying with a heart attack or a child near convulsions with fever and they could honestly care less.

The fees are outrageous, the usual waiting period unnecessary and then finally the treatment received, deplorable. The secretaries and nurses primarily act as though they are doing you a favor.

Agreed, no one wants to be sick, but when one is ill, just a cheerful smile or tender voice could make the difference. A little encouragement and sympathy would be much nicer than a crabby nurse, annoyed secretary or indifferent doctor. If these "professionals" don't like their jobs, then don't do it.

I, too, am a professional dealing with people, and I know if I used some of the treatment received at the hospital I wouldn't have any clients.

In summation, medical staff, please try to be more human, smile and be happy—even if on the surface only.

Anti-Tocks, anti-everything

Editor, The Record:

As a student at ECSSC, it is difficult to disassociate myself from the anti-Tocks Island Dam movement.

Even so, the record should be set straight. The group that is pushing to end the dam is usually against everything. They are not interested in the pros and cons of the project — if the project is cancelled they have shown that they can beat the "establishment." I, as one of many, do not think that to be reason enough to oppose the dam or the park.

Personally, I believe both the dam and the park projects are necessary and will be a major asset, individually and together.

Stories Behind Words

By William Penfield

Word-Builders

A number of English words were formed from the Latin root "servare," which means to save. One of them is "servant," which means one who serves.

Some of the prefixes that are used with the root are: pre (before); con (with or together with); and re (again or back).

Combining the prefixes with the root produces the following words: preserve (to save before something is destroyed); conserve (to save with, hence to guard); and reserve (to save back).

Needs help

By Jean Adams

ENCOUNTER: (Q.) My school is on double shifts. I am in the late shift, so it is nearly dark when I get out.

For a long time I watched his girl walking home. Then one afternoon I followed her and caught her in an alley.

She acted scared at first, but then grabbed me around the neck. One thing led to another and now she is pregnant.

I have asked my parents for help but they are very unreasonable, and can't see that I am on the verge of a nervous breakdown.

Afraid in Pennsylvania. (A.) I think "Afraid" describes you better than "on the verge of a nervous breakdown."

Of course you are afraid. The girl is too. So are your parents, and her parents. Explain to your mother and father that you must have a serious discussion with the girl and her parents so that some solution can be worked out. Ask them to go with you.

If they refuse, ask your minister or your counselor at school to go with you. After the conference is held and decisions made, I don't believe any of you will be quite so afraid. It is indecision, not knowing that brings fear.

PAY TAKEN: (Q.) I have a friend who baby-sits but doesn't get any benefit out of it. Her father takes the money from her when she comes home from sitting. Last Saturday it was $12.

He tells her he will give it back to her when she needs it. When she asks for it, however, he tells her she doesn't need it. If she insists, he sends her to her room. What can she do?

A Friend in Pennsylvania

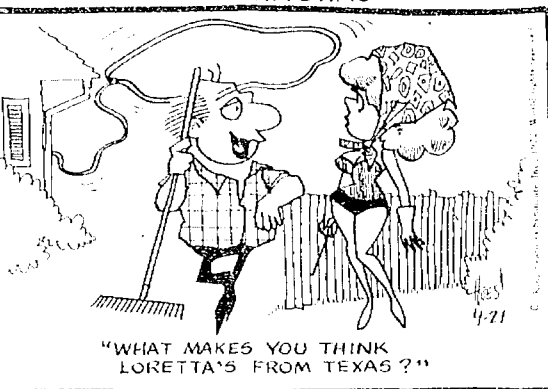

(A.) If your friend has been able to save out a few dollars, she can go to a neighborhood bank and start a savings account. Then she can ask her employers to pay her with checks instead of cash.

If her father does not take the checks from her, she can deposit them in the bank. If he does, she can get mail deposit envelopes and mail the checks to the bank before she comes home. Then when she needs cash she can get it at the bank.

Some parents have no principles. When they don't, teenagers have to do what they can, honestly and morally, to protect themselves.

Opening a savings account is an honest and moral thing to do.

Ecology corner

Summer ecology fun

By GAIL NEVINS

STROUDSBURG — Summer, praise be, isn't far off so it isn't any too soon to begin making plans for that time when "the livin' is easy."

One possibility for interested individuals is the teacher workshops being held by The Appalachian Mountain Club. Regular and advanced courses in curriculum development and leadership training for teachers and their students will run all summer.

Courses for teachers only will be held in June and September. Courses for teachers and students will be held in late September and October. Inquire: Appalachian Mountain Club, Gorham, New Hampshire 03581.

Also on tap for summer and beyond is a new curriculum being offered by the University of Rhode Island: Natural Resources. It is aimed at getting competent people into the area of resource management. For more information write to the Admissions Office, University of Rhode Island, Kingston, R. I. 02881.

The Population Institute, 100 Maryland Ave. NE, Washington, D.C. 20002, is publishing "his popins," a newsletter aimed at sharing action project models and materials with high school teachers and students. For more information, write to the Institute.

Tocks vote unchanged

STROUDSBURG — Results from the straw poll at Wyckoff's department store last week indicate no change in the shoppers' sentiments against the Tocks Island Dam.

A no vote of 667 was returned against the dam and 257 in favor of it. The reverse was true for the national recreation project with 641 for it and 249 against.

Sen. Kennedy and Sen. Muskie tied for the lead of Democratic nomination contenders with 116 votes followed by McGovern with 65 votes.

President Nixon took 430 votes, the largest Republican expression since the store set up a voting machine to educate the public in its workings.

Helpful wife

HUNTSVILLE, Tex. (UPI)—A Houston housewife has been charged with attempting to smuggle four papers of heroin and a nude picture of herself to her husband, who is serving a 12-year sentence in the state prison for possession of narcotics. Prison authorities found the nude picture Sunday in the prisoner's sock and the heroin in his mouth as he was being returned to his cell following a visit with his wife. City police arrested his wife as she left the prison.

Teacher's notebook

By JUDITH GELBER

Schools are supposed to be a sort of staging center in which students are prepared for "life." It would seem logical, therefore, that the schools would be an integral part of the communities they serve. In reality, however, the school environment is more like an isolated hot-house for the forced growth of young plants that will eventually be transplanted.

This is particularly true of the college campus. Even big-city universities that exist literally, in the very heart of the city, and that use the city streets as walkways between buildings, appear to those on the inside and on the outside as a separate world.

It can be argued that the college campus is something special. Most of the students generally come from outside the area in which the college is located. Any interest these students may have in local affairs would therefore be slight and short in duration.

However, the same thing cannot be said of local elementary and high schools. The neighborhood school concept, which is being defended so stoutly by government officials and just plain folks, means that the children in a given area deserve to be educated in their own environment. The theory is that the children will either remain in this environment, or in one very much like it when they leave school.

Yet, while parents may insist that they want the schools to teach local values and attitudes, they don't also insist that the schoolhouse doors be open to two-way traffic between the schools and the outside community.

It is no wonder, then, that so many students look upon the schools as places of forced confinement that bear no resemblance to the outside world in which they expect to live out their lives. And it is also not surprising that so many young people feel a crushing boredom in the classroom.

An English teacher in a small high school in northeastern Georgia, who felt he "was losing contact" with his students by trying to interest them in 100-year-old literary classics, put aside the assigned textbooks and urged his students to develop a magazine of their own. He further suggested that the magazine be devoted to articles about the dying way of life of the people in the surrounding hill country.

The young people thoroughly enjoyed gathering material and information from relatives, friends and old people who lived in lonely isolation. Many of the students are so engrossed in the project that they work after school, at night, even on weekends.

The project payed off for the students, as well as for the community. Last month Doubleday & Co. published a collection of student articles from their magazine under the title, "The Foxfire Book." And the student magazine has achieved recognition both at home and abroad, as a means of motivating formerly bored teenagers.

But the real success story was not in the book but in the excitement that the students felt, and in their involvement in the life around them outside the school walls. The school and the community shared their experiences, thereby enriching both.

Do schools ignore community?

Apple a day keeps doctor away

By GEORGE ABRAHAM

A WORD ABOUT APPLES: How many apple varieties have there been since the days of Adam and Eve? No one knows, but we do know that over 7,000 different apple varieties have been given names in recorded history.

Is there anything to the idea that "an apple a day keeps the Doc away?" I think there is. In fact, all fruits are healthy for you.

A study at Michigan State revealed that students who ate two or three apples daily and regularly over three experimental periods made significantly fewer calls at the University Health Service clinic for treatment of upper respiratory illnesses and tension-pressure illnesses than the balance of the student body. A study in Russia at about the same time revealed that 177 of 180 cases of hypertension were relieved by an apple diet.

In 1965, another study was made at four small institutions of higher learning in Rochester, N. Y. A part of the subjects ate just one apple between dinner and bedtime each day, for one consecutive year. A control group had no restrictions or special diet requirements. Twenty-four per cent of the subjects eating an apple each day were free of illnesses associated with colds during the year of the study.

Only 8.5 per cent of the non-apple eaters were free of colds during the same experimental period. . . a three to one ratio in favor of eating apples for cold prevention. Some ingredient in apples seem to have the effect of producing greater immunity or resistance to upper respiratory illness.

Why not set out some dwarf fruits this spring? You'd get double bonus: fruit, plus shade, and you help improve our environment, since the trees suck up pollutants and give off oxygen for us to breathe. All trees are a joy forever. Bring joy to your little corner of the world. Plant a tree today for tomorrow.

Harris poll disproves 'defusing'

Viet war still live issue

By LOUIS HARRIS

There is reason to believe that the Vietnam War remains a very live issue which could be a pivotal factor in determining who is elected President of the United States in November. The theory that the war issue has been "defused" does not square with many of the facts of American public opinion.

A plurality of 46 to 20 per cent of the American people feel that "if there is no negotiated Vietnam peace agreement," then President Nixon "will not have kept his 1968 promise to end U. S. involvement in Vietnam." By an almost identical 46 to 22 per cent, the public also feels that Nixon will not have kept his 1968 pledges "if there is no negotiated cease-fire with the Communists."

A majority of 56 to 26 per cent would favor a U. S. policy which "just announced one day that all U. S. participation and help in the war was over." At the same time, 70 per cent of the public does not believe that "all U. S. involvement in Vietnam will be ended by election time."

This is the rather bleak state of public opinion facing President Nixon on Vietnam as the 1972 election campaign goes into full swing.

The irony of the situation, however, is that nearly every point put forth by the President in his Jan. 25 speech on our terms for negotiating an end to the war meet with sizeable and even overwhelming public approval. In mid-February, a cross section of 1,557 households was asked:

"Here are the main points of President Nixon's plan for negotiating an end to the Vietnam war. For each, tell me if you approve or disapprove."

PUBLIC REACTION TO NIXON VIETNAM PROPOSALS

	Approve per cent	Disapprove per cent	Not Sure per cent
To exchange all prisoners of war.	91	3	6
To have a cease-fire in all Indo-China.	85	5	10
Withdraw all U. S. troops 6 months after agreement.	80	10	10
Hold new South Vietnam elections under international control.	64	12	24
Have "thieu gov't. resign a month before elections.	50	16	34
Send U.S. economic aid to all Vietnam after fighting ends.	34	45	21

Only the offer of continuing economic aid after the fighting is over meets with public disapproval. On all other provisions, however, the President obviously has come up with a negotiating position which has the wide backing of the people of the country. The trouble is that the public has rather low expectations of the likelihood that the Communists will accept Nixon's terms.

Thus, when asked to rate the President on the job he has done to negotiate an end to the war, he comes up with negative marks from the public. The cross section was asked:

"How would you rate the job President Nixon has done in negotiating an end to the war with North Vietnam and the Communists — excellent, pretty good, only fair, or poor?"

NIXON RATING ON NEGOTIATING END OF VIETNAM WAR

	Total Public per cent
Positive	43
Negative	53
Not sure	4

This is the same cross section recently reported as giving Nixon a 55 per cent positive rating on his overall performance in office, and an even higher 60 per cent positive score on "working for peace in the world."

Obviously, there are matters in foreign policy other than Vietnam, such as his new China policy and his upcoming trip to Russia, on which people are making their ultimate judgment these days about Nixon. And, despite the reservations about the Nixon performance on Vietnam, likely voters still back him 44-40 per cent at this time over his strongest potential Democratic opponent, Sen. Muskie.

So it might be tempting to conclude that despite American impatience and even exasperation with continued American involvement in Vietnam, the war issue has faded to a point where it will not be pivotal in the outcome next November. Certainly there is evidence that the Nixon policy to date has not crippled his chances for re-election.

But there is deeper evidence that so long as no decisive resolution of the Vietnam question is apparent to the voters, there will continue to be doubts about the President's credibility on the war. Periodically, Harris

Surveys have asked cross sections of the public this question:

"As far as the war in Vietnam is concerned, do you think President Nixon has been frank and straightforward about the war, or do you think he has not told the American people the real truth about the situation there?"

NIXON CREDIBILITY ON VIETNAM

	Frank, Straight-forward per cent	Not Told Real Truth per cent	Not Sure per cent
February, 1972	35	53	12
November, 1971	36	51	13
October	36	52	12
August	31	57	12
July	33	50	17
April	40	48	12
February	33	51	16
August, 1970	39	49	12
July	48	38	14
May	42	46	12

Nixon's TV account of the secret negotiations with the Communists in Paris by Henry Kissinger obviously did not eliminate public feelings that they have not been receiving the full story. Although his recent negotiation position has met with widespread public approval, Nixon's credibility on the war has not improved at all.

Attacking Reds hit from within

SAIGON (UPI)—When the Communists attacked in Saigon's northernmost province, Quang Tri April 1, they did not come pouring across the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) by the thousands.

Most of them already were in Quang Tri Province and had been there for months and even years. Many had been recruited locally but most, allied officers say, had been filtering down from North Vietnam, across the DMZ and via the Ho Chi Minh Trail through Laos.

Since late last fall the infiltration rate into Quang Tri province had stepped up, according to allied intelligence reports, and at the outset of the Communist offensive there were roughly 50,000 in position to attack.

Nearly all the guns in the Communists' arsenal come from Russia and China. Many of them are just one millimeter larger in bore than allied weapons, so that they can use captured allied ammunition while allied guns are too small to take Communist ammunition.

Ranged against the North Vietnamese at the outset of the offensive were 20,000 South Vietnamese men. South Vietnam's newest division, the 3rd Infantry, was organized late last year to replace the departing Americans. It numbers about 10,000 there also were two regiments of South Vietnamese marines, totalling 5,000 men, and about 5,000 militiamen.

The South Vietnamese, plus the 200 or so U.S. advisers and artillery spotters remaining from the 100,000 Americans in Quang Tri at the height of the fighting four years ago, manned a string of a dozen fire bases screening Quang Tri combat base, which is three miles north of Quang Tri city, the provincial capital.

Within 36 hours of the first ground attacks all of the bases had fallen. Not all of them were overrun by the Communists. Some were abandoned because heavy shelling made them untenable.

Defensive driving course set

STROUDSBURG — April 30 will mark the kick-off for the National Safety Council's first Annual National Defense Driving Week.

The week April 30 to May 6, will be designated to remind the American driver that traffic safety begins at home. "A safer America demands that every driver learn Defensive Driving", says Howard Pyle, president of the National Safety Council and Bernard Yardley, President of the Local AARP Chapter.

Pyle and Yardley noted, "85 per cent of all accidents are still attributable to driver error, and these errors account for over 55,000 deaths annually plus two million disabling injuries and billions of dollars in property damage."

In preparation for National Defensive Driving Week, many chapters of the combined American Association of Retired Persons and the National Retired Teachers Association, together with the National Safety Council, are sponsoring Defensive Driving Courses locally.

The Pocono Area Chapter 633 is cooperating by holding such a course at the YMCA. The session of eight hours will be held two days, Monday, April 24 and Thursday, April 27, starting at 9:30 a.m. and 1:00 to 3:00 p.m. each day. Attendance of 8 hours is required to receive a certificate. A nominal fee will be charged to cover the cost of the instruction manual and materials.

Boating courses offered

EAST STROUDSBURG — The United States Coast Guard Auxiliary is now completing its offering of courses in water safety and safe boating. The program, extending over 15 Wednesday evenings since late January, presently has 18 persons enrolled.

According to Thomas Joyce, Commander of Division 10, Flotilla 10 A of the Coast Guard Auxiliary, "This year's course represents the second annual program held in Monroe County designed to promote boating safety in Pennsylvania."

The two-hour sessions, beginning at 7:30 p.m. each Wednesday evening, are being conducted in Stroud Hall on the East Stroudsburg State College campus.

Commander Joyce serves as instructor for the course. Designed in three distinct segments, participants received three basic lessons in seamanship and safe boat handling followed by an eight-week session devoted to proper boating navigation, basic motor repairs, communication techniques and other basic rudiments. The final four-week sessions is delving into such more sophisticated areas as charting and plotting.

Those persons who complete the 15-week session are fully qualified to handle sizeable boats.

Adventures of a zookeeper highlight club's meeting

By ANDREA B. STERN
Pocono Record Reporter

STROUDSBURG — Mrs. Claud Leister, owner and operator of the Pocono Wild Animal Farm, was once told by a horse connoisseur that, had she been born a horse, it would have been a sorrel mare because of her courage and dependability.

And, after only several minutes with Mrs. Leister, those traits become clearly visible.

The only American woman in zoo management for any significant number of years, Mrs. Leister founded the local zoo, the fourth largest in the state, along with her husband in 1948 and has continued to operate it herself since his death.

A recent guest speaker at the Woman's Club of the Stroudsburg's April meeting, her remarks were appropriately labeled "Adventures of a Zookeeper."

Claiming how "abysmally ignorant" she was concerning animals and zookeeping when she first married her husband, the renowned professor of ornithology at Cornell University and curator of mammals at the Bronx Zoo in New York, Mrs. Leister related she soon became determined to develop proficiency at telling different animals of the same species apart.

And, in this regard, she noted, "I'll always have a fondness for the Yellow Billed Cuckoo because it's the first bird I ever recognized."

Mrs. Leister recounted the hilarious exploits of the farm's two Sicilian donkeys, Tom and Jerry. The oldest domesticated animals on earth, she pointed out it was a donkey Christ rode into Jerusalem.

"They're so smart. But they'd have to be smart or they wouldn't have lasted all these years," she declared.

Describing the donkeys, Mrs. Leister noted that, although the dominant one, Tom "never made a sound."

"That is, until a female, purchased for breeding purposes, was unloaded at the farm."

"Tom and Jerry galloped over and Tom gave out the loudest hee-haw you ever heard. He had just never had anything worth talking about," she offered to the club members' amusement.

Another episode pictured Jerry who was "great on pinching ladies in the behind."

"They'd scream their heads off and their husbands would just laugh themselves sick," she added with an obvious twinkle in her eyes. "He got such a reputation, people would visit just to have their pictures taken with him."

Describes travels

Mrs. Leister captured a spellbound audience with tales of her world-wide travels to exotic ports of call and internationally known zoos... an account of her participation in a native dance in which she "just towered over" her Malaysian male partner... a touching narrative of an Orangutan sanctuary in Southeast Asia.

Arriving at the sanctuary for Orangutan babies, she found herself in a pouring tropical rain and ankle-deep in mud... with Orangutans "hanging from the trees all over the place."

"They were so curious about 12 people arriving, they came right up to us and put their arms around our legs," she related. "And, when the rangers brought them a pile of milk, they sat in a circle and waited their turns until the rangers put a cup of milk in each of their hands."

Mrs. Claud Leister... remembrances of a native Malaysian dance.

Describing a visit to the Rotterdam Zoo which had just recently purchased two of the sanctuary's young, she mused, "I just looked at them and wondered whether they had been among the ones that came over to us on that rainy day and put their arms round our legs."

Drawing a tableau of children's "rippling laughter" at the Animal Farm in summer and winter breakfasts by her large bay window watching "the donkeys and lambs carefully picking their way through the snow," she

French custard pie made in old tradition

STROUDSBURG — From the land of gumbo and jambalaya, pralines and cafe au lait now comes a new collection of heirloom recipes in the great Creole tradition. The cookbook, "Recipes and Reminiscences of New Orleans," piques the appetite to ravenous with its gamut of gourmet creations.

A labor of love, the book was assembled by friends of the historic Ursuline Convent, founded in 1726 and reputed to be the oldest building in the Mississippi valley.

From its pages we've selected a Tarté a Bouillie, a masterful French custard pie baked in a short, cookie-like crust. Those who'd like a copy of the cookbook can obtain one for $3.95 by writing Ursuline Convent Cookbook, P.O. Box 7491, Metairie, La. Proceeds from the book are being devoted to restoring this ancient landmark.

- TARTE A. BOUILLIE
(French Custard Pie)
Sweet Dough Crust:
- 1 1/2 cups flour
 - 1/2 cup sugar
 - 1 egg
 - One-third cup shortening
 - 1 teaspoon baking powder
 - 3/4 teaspoon nutmeg
 - 1 pinch of salt
 - Cream sugar and shortening. Add beaten egg, flour, nutmeg and salt. Knead slightly. Roll out to the size of an 8-inch pie plate. Crust will be thick. Pour custard in crust and bake at 400 degrees until brown.
- Custard Filling:
- Two-thirds cup milk
 - One-third cup milk
 - 2 eggs, beaten
 - 3 tablespoons flour
 - 1/2 cup sugar
 - 1/4 teaspoon salt
 - 1 teaspoon vanilla
- Bring two-thirds cup milk to a boil. To the one-thirds cup cold milk, add beaten eggs, flour, sugar and salt. Carefully combine all ingredients to boiling milk and cook until thick. Remove from heat and add vanilla.

Judy Smith honored at shower

North Ireland—chance for peace?

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI)—"We are now approaching Belfast airport," says the stewardess in the apocryphal story. "Please set your watches back 300 years."

Perhaps, just perhaps, that joke has lost its bite.

On Friday, March 24, British Prime Minister Edward Heath announced he was taking over direct rule of Northern Ireland, a self-governing province wracked by three centuries of agonized division and tortured by three years of murderous bloodshed.

But today it was possible, barely possible, that Northern Ireland was not back at the Battle of the Boyne, not still fighting William of Orange's 300-year-old cause, but back where it was a mere three years ago.

Every day without a catastrophe improves the odds that Heath's "frightening gamble" might actually win.

Brian Faulkner pinned the "frightening gamble" label on Heath's bold move. Faulkner was prime minister of the provincial government by which Northern Ireland's protestants had for 51 years dominated the Roman Catholics they outnumbered two to one. Heath's move dumped Faulkner from office, dissolved his parliament at Stormont and gave Ulster's six counties a British ruler again.

Since then the most dramatic thing is what has not happened.

There has been no civil war. There has been virtually no violence between the mutually antagonistic religious faiths. Above all there has been no protestant "backlash."

A protestant backlash was what everyone feared. To a man, Heath's advisors warned him of that risk in his direct-rule decision—that the majority protestants, their governmental reins snatched from their grasp, might turn violently upon the minority Catholics and impose their will by bullet and bomb.

It hasn't happened. Each passing day makes it less likely that it will.

For Heath's direct rule move hit both religious communities.

Its impact was separate but about equal.

Catholics began Northern Ireland's three years of agony with marches and protests. What they wanted then was civil rights—a meaningful voice in their own government, an end to discrimination in jobs and housing. There were no bombs then.

They came soon. The Irish Republican Army (IRA), the outlawed super-nationalist organization dedicated to welding together the two halves of Ireland into a Catholic, socialist-leaning whole, imposed upon the civil rights campaign its own campaign of terror.

That program of indiscriminate bombing and open warfare on British troops has killed nearly 300 persons. It also usurped the Catholics' goals.

What the IRA wanted became identified with what the Catholics wanted. The IRA wanted a unified Ireland, 32 Catholic counties under one flag, and it swore to settle for nothing less. Civil rights went ignored in the blood and violence which followed.

Now, with a stroke, Heath has slashed away the trappings of Protestant power. He has granted most civil rights by fiat—with promises of referendums on unification in which all will have the same voice, by speaking directly "to the people of Northern Ireland, whatever your job, your politics or your religion."

This is what the Catholics wanted. Now they've got it.

Thus their goals have begun to diverge again from the IRA's. "Give peace a chance," the Catholics cry. "We have suffered enough."

The IRA insists it will carry on, that it will fight for its goal. But there are insistent signs this stand is splitting it from the Catholic community as a whole. And despite its rejection of a formal truce, a truce in the IRA terror campaign has existed since Heath's move. Violence remains. The truce is often broken. But it is there, and it has kept violence to a minimum.

But just possibly, direct rule is creating a climate in which people can live with bitter anger, not kill each other because of it. That is the gamble.

Brothers past rulers

Arthur F. Everitt Jr., left and brother Samuel S. Everitt share unusual distinction: They are past exalted rulers of Elks Lodges, Arthur of the Lehigh Lodge 1284 and Sam of East Stroudsburg Lodge 319. They have two other brothers, Ben, past exalted ruler of Easton Lodge 121, and J. Allison, past secretary of East Stroudsburg Lodge. Some record!

Opening lead — king of hearts.

"Your recent behavior is rather astonishing, Holmes. As one who specializes in deduction, you should feel somewhat ashamed."

"Watson, my dear fellow, what on earth are you talking about?"

"Your bridge — it's alarmingly unscientific. Consider that five club hand last night. West led the K-A and another heart which you ruffed. All you had to do now was lead trumps, but instead you fiddled around with diamonds and spades."

"It was quite necessary," Holmes calmly replied. "In order to play my clubs to the best advantage I had to count out the other suits. Of course, I already knew how the spades were distributed. "Spades! But Holmes, the opponents had bid diamonds and hearts, not spades."

"Come, Watson. Surely you remember the case of the dog who failed to bark. Spades were never mentioned, so they could not fail to be divided 4-4. While East was known to also have four hearts for his bid, the diamond suit remained something of a mystery. In order to learn whether West had four or five of them, I led a diamond to the ace, ruffed a diamond, led a spade to the king, and ruffed another diamond. When East showed out I knew he had started with two diamonds, four spades, four hearts, and hence three clubs."

"But haven't you forgotten that West was the opening bidder?" protested Watson. "His singleton club could have been the queen."

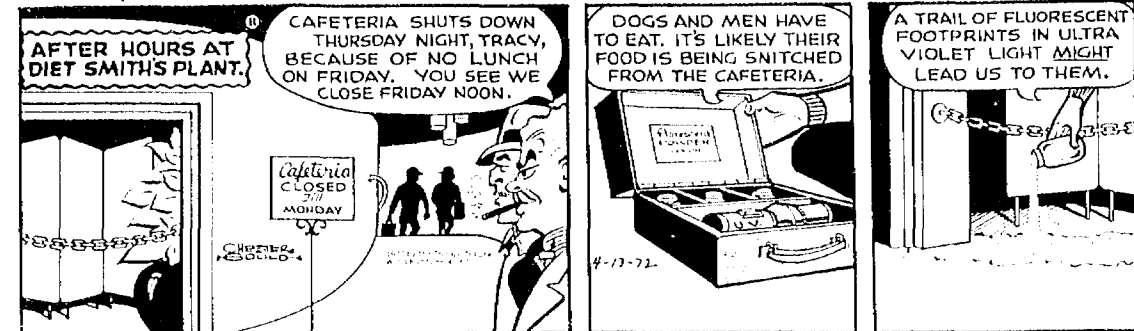

"I think not, East was likely to have 6 high-card points for his heart response. If they included specifically the Q-J of spades, West had opened with only 12 high-card points including a singleton queen, and that would have been very abnormal indeed. So when I led a spade to the ace and took the club finesse, it was almost certain to succeed and very scientific."

Engineer technician test set by Pa. Civil Service

HARRISBURG — Entrance and promotion examinations to fill eight hydraulic engineering technician positions have been scheduled periodically during the next 12 months at statewide test centers, according to Richard A. Rosenberg, State Civil Service Commission director.

Rosenberg said the first test will be held June 17 at customary high schools in 11 Pennsylvania cities.

Applications must be submitted to the commission's Harrisburg office by May 17.

Annual salaries for hydraulic engineering technicians range from $5,292 for beginning-level positions to $13,301 for advanced levels.

Applicants for the entry-level positions need a high school diploma or certification of equivalent technical or academic training, supplemented by courses in mathematics, drafting and the physical sciences.

Various combinations of technical experience and appropriate education will be considered for advanced levels. An associate degree in surveying, drafting, design, civil or other engineering technology will be accepted.

Interested candidates should consult the examination announcement for detailed requirements.

Applications and examinations may be obtained from State Civil Service Commission offices in Harrisburg, Pittsburgh and Philadelphia. Department of Environmental Resources, Bureau of Personnel, 333 South Office Building, Harrisburg, and local offices in statewide Pennsylvania State Employment Service.

Vo-tech director interviews set

STROUDSBURG — The joint committee of the Monroe County Area Vocational Technical School will meet at 7 p.m. Monday in the Civil Defense Control Room of the conference.

The purpose of the meeting is to interview applicants for the position of director of Vocational Education.

Funeral Notice

Funeral services for Mrs. Helen M. Greiner, 75, of 511 Bryant St., Stroudsburg, died Wednesday in the Allentown General Hospital. She was the widow of Charles E. Greiner, who died late August.

A native of Stroudsburg, she was a daughter of the late William and Martha (Garris) Slauer.

She had been employed for several years by the A.B. Wyckoff Department Store until her retirement in 1969.

She was a member of Christ Episcopal Church, Stroudsburg, and a member of the former St. Mary's Guild of that church. She was also a member of the Daughters of America, and she was a 52-year member of the Dames of Malta.

She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Gladys Fleming, of Stroudsburg, and Mrs. Helen MacDonough, of Allentown; a son, C. Richard Greiner, of Stroudsburg; a sister, Mrs. Sue Cramer, of Chicago, Ill.; 11 grandchildren and one great grandchild.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. Saturday from the Dunkelberger & Klotzsch Funeral Home, Stroudsburg, with Rev. Charles A. Park officiating.

Viewing will be after 7 p.m. Friday at the funeral home.

Burial will be in the Stroudsburg Cemetery.

Defensive driving course offered by local AARP

STROUDSBURG — A Defensive driving course designed to instruct licensed drivers in techniques which will help them "drive and stay alive" will be conducted April 21 and 27 at the Monroe County YMCA, 809 Main St., Stroudsburg.

There will be two two-hour class sessions from 9:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. and 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. each day. Course completion certificates will be granted to students who attend all eight hours of the course.

Sponsored as a public service by the Pocono Area Chapter 633, American Association of Retired Persons, the course will be given in cooperation with the National Safety Council.

Trained instructors certified by the council will use films and other visual aids to demonstrate ways older drivers can avoid injuries and unnecessary property damage by improving driving skills and habits.

Fred J. Lee, Dorothy Lee, and Lester Lark are the instructors.

Registration information can be obtained from Fred Lee, Box 179, East Stroudsburg R.D. 3.

With more than three million members, AARP is the nation's largest organization committed to helping older Americans achieve retirement lives of independence, dignity and purpose.

AARP also sponsors many income stretching services for members, included are recommended health, life and automobile insurance programs, a world wide travel service, pharmacies offering prescription medicines at reasonable prices on a walk-in and mail-order basis, a temporary employment service, and continuing education.

Men's club supper

STROUDSBURG — The Salvation Army Men's Club will hold a roast beef supper and bake sale from 4:30 p.m. Sunday at the Salvation Army Citadel, 226 Washington St., East Stroudsburg.

Funeral Notice

Funeral services for Mrs. Helen M. Greiner, 75, of 511 Bryant St., Stroudsburg, died Wednesday in the Allentown General Hospital. She was the widow of Charles E. Greiner, who died late August.

A native of Stroudsburg, she was a daughter of the late William and Martha (Garris) Slauer.

She had been employed for several years by the A.B. Wyckoff Department Store until her retirement in 1969.

She was a member of Christ Episcopal Church, Stroudsburg, and a member of the former St. Mary's Guild of that church. She was also a member of the Daughters of America, and she was a 52-year member of the Dames of Malta.

She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Gladys Fleming, of Stroudsburg, and Mrs. Helen MacDonough, of Allentown; a son, C. Richard Greiner, of Stroudsburg; a sister, Mrs. Sue Cramer, of Chicago, Ill.; 11 grandchildren and one great grandchild.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. Saturday from the Dunkelberger & Klotzsch Funeral Home, Stroudsburg, with Rev. Charles A. Park officiating.

Viewing will be after 7 p.m. Friday at the funeral home.

Burial will be in the Stroudsburg Cemetery.

County may receive $204,000 windfall

STROUDSBURG — According to Pennsylvania Budget Secretary Charles P. McIntosh Monroe County may be in for a $204,000 windfall from the state under the Shapp Administration's new aid to counties program.

In releasing the figures, McIntosh cautioned the information was for informational purposes only and was based on the data available at the time of release.

Final allocations will be subject to the amounts appropriated by the state legislature. Conditions and formulas used at the time of the legislature's passage will also affect the amounts.

With all the conditions noted, the figures for Monroe County are earmarked as follows:

The greatest single portion of the state aid is legged for Direct Court Costs in the amount of $88,000. The recent addition of a second judge for the 43rd Judicial District (Monroe and Pike Counties) has increased the burden of county expenses in the judicial department.

Part of the new state aid will probably be used to absorb additional costs.

The second largest amount, $72,000, is earmarked for Community Mental Health and is expected to go directly to the Carbon-Monroe-Pike Mental Health Mental Retardation agency.

Katz defends party spending

STROUDSBURG — Edward Katz, candidate for chairman of the Republican Party, said Wednesday the debt outstanding for Monroe County's GOP will be made up in its next fund-raising event.

"A political party is not a profit-making organization," Katz said. "Its primary purpose is to elect candidates to public office. Toward this goal we raise funds and we spend whatever money is necessary to run active campaigns."

"There is no question but the money spent by the party in the past was administered properly," Katz declared.

Charges claiming the party was financially broke and functionally split came from Katz's opponent in the race Dr. William C. Barry.

Barry's charges were answered by the retiring

Republican Party Chairman Dr. Frederick Jones at a recent party rally.

Jones directed his comments to Barry. "You have been misinformed. There is no clique running the Republican Party, nor has there been during my two years as County Chairman."

Jones' remarks were aimed at a charge made by Barry regarding a lack of communications within the party and an alleged leadership clique directing party policy.

Katz declined to refute Barry's remarks. Instead, he presented his qualifications for the chairmanship.

"Name almost any political campaign that took place in the past, and I was active in it," Katz said. "Name almost any political event that took place in Monroe County in the past, and I took part in it."

Fire departments in area kept busy with grass fires

STROUDSBURG — Sporadic grass fires kept area firemen busy Wednesday as four local units responded to blazes throughout the afternoon.

The Stroud Township Volunteer Fire Department sent two trucks and 25 men to a grass fire on Route 417 near Anadomink shortly after 4 p.m. Wednesday and continued the blaze to a quarter of an acre of grass land.

The East Stroudsburg firefighters responded to a similar grass fire near Race Street, East Stroudsburg, at approximately the same time with four trucks and 37 men. That fire was contained to about a quarter acre also.

Fire Chief George Fuller, of the Shawnee Volunteer Fire Department, reported that his company responded to a grass fire in the village of Shawnee on Delaware at the residence of Sanford Chase.

Four trucks and 16 men were at the scene.

The only other reported alarm was in Jackson Township where firemen there put out a small grass fire of about the same size as the Shawnee on Delaware blaze. The fire was along Rt. 76 near the Noyhart residence and all men and equipment returned to the stationhouse at 7:25 p.m., only 25 minutes after they were called out.

The agency is currently researching an expanded program of small group supervised housing for the mentally retarded. State funds for the housing program have been appropriated but not delivered. The agency is chronically in need of funds.

Annually, the MHMR agency is appropriated less than their budget expectations. Recently MHMR has been asked to expand services in Pike County.

A $22,000 allocation is in the proposed aid figures for child welfare. Currently, the Monroe County Children's Bureau is funded $57,000 in grants and gifts.

In the 1972 allocations, child welfare in Monroe County took an $11,000 cut in state aid due to a tight money situation in the Department of Public Welfare.

If the $22,000 comes in from Harrisburg, the earlier cut will be accounted for and the Children's Bureau may be able to use the additional monies in its expanded service to preschool children.

Expanded program

The Children's Bureau is pushing for an expanded Day Care Program requiring $10,000 from the county. If the new aid funds come in the amount now scheduled, the Day Care service could be funded without juggling the county budget.

Another $3,000 labeled for outpatient care will probably

Wayne D.A. files answer in Hillcrest murder case

By DAVID J. NICHOLAS
Record County Editor

HONESDALE — Wayne County District Attorney Robert Conway filed an answer in Wayne County court Wednesday to a defense request to drop charges of murder and manslaughter against John Reilly of Pampack Point.

The request was filed by Atty. John W. Bair and Carlton O'Malley of Scranton on March 7 in behalf of Reilly, one-time owner of the former Hillcrest School for the Retarded.

Reilly is charged with murder and manslaughter in the death of Chester resident Frank Dickerson, 23, who died on March 24, 1970 in the Wayne County Memorial Hospital of what was later determined to be "acute pneumonia."

The reasons for the request for dismissal of charges in the motion included "improper wording in the original complaint and charges" and the citing of improper sections of the Pennsylvania Penal Code.

In Conway's answer, he stated the acts referred to in the complaint do not require specific wording for the charges involved. He also pointed out the wording for the indictment will be easily understood by any jury.

Reilly and former Hillcrest nurse John Butask of Ashley were arrested on Dec. 3, 1970 by Pennsylvania Justice Department agents.

Both were freed of bail following the arraignment, and at the hearing Butask was released for lack of evidence by District Magistrate Allan Campbell of Hawley.

Numerous investigations have surrounded the death of Dickerson with the initial probe instigated by Wayne County Coroner Robert Jennings who questioned school officials when he discovered the youth's death certificate, signed by Dr. H.N. Owens, then president and director of Hillcrest, did not list a cause of death.

Reilly and Butask are charged with murder and manslaughter in the death of Dickerson. Reilly is charged with murder and manslaughter in the death of Dickerson. Reilly is charged with murder and manslaughter in the death of Dickerson.

Legion group to meet

STROUDSBURG — The Department Executive Committee of the American Legion, Department of Pennsylvania, will meet on Friday and Saturday at the Sheraton Pocono Inn, Stroudsburg.

Friday's session will get underway at 11 p.m., and Saturday's session will get underway at 9 a.m.

Friday's session will feature a vote on several resolutions which will be brought before the committee as well as a report by the "Hoak for National Commander" chairman, Daniel A. Drew. Hoak's candidacy was unanimously endorsed by the 53rd State Convention held last summer.

The following resolutions will be considered by the committee Friday night:

To petition Congress to revise travel allowances for veterans going to V.A. hospitals for treatment.

To request the Pennsylvania State Civil Service Commission to ensure that all regulations and directives concerning veterans performance are adhered to, and that punitive action be taken against those violating such regulations.

To urge Congress to eliminate, to individuals receiving V.A. pensions, Social Security and railroad retirement benefits as countable income.

To support the Pennsylvania Fraternal Order of Police in a planned demonstration at the state capital in protest of the abolishment of capital punishment.

To urge the Pennsylvania General Assembly to authorize nursing home care facilities for veterans under a "matching funds" program with the federal government.

To endorse Pa. House Bill 1736, which would provide educational benefits to children of prisoners of war and missing in action, whose fathers were residents of Pennsylvania at the time they entered the service.

To voice objection to "any and all violations of the U.S. Flag Code, no matter what their purpose and aims."

Local initiative holds key to better police protection

BY GARY GROSSMAN
Pocono Record Reporter

STROUDSBURG — Local initiative is the key to improvement in law enforcement in Monroe County, according to Harry Russ Jr., regional director of the Governor's Justice Commission.

Russ said Wednesday the function of his commission is apparently misunderstood by the elected officials in Monroe County.

"We spent a hell of a lot of the taxpayers' money getting the message across. Apparently we failed miserably in Monroe County," Russ said.

Local officials expressed disappointment over the absence of recommendations in the Justice Commission's initial report on law enforcement in Monroe County.

Russ said the Governor's Commission can't make any recommendations until local officials identify their law enforcement problems and seek help from the commission.

And if the local officials don't go to Russ and tell the commission its help is needed, Russ said the commission will have to gather up its marbles and go home.

Means money
By marbles Russ means money. The commission is a clearing agency for funds. It offers 25 per cent funding for programs to solve identified needs in law enforcement.

The commission's biggest problem is getting local officials to admit they have a problem.

"Our most pressing problem is lack of cooperation on the part of officials and public apathy," Russ said.

If local officials are supposed to go to the commission with problems, why did the commission undertake the study of the law enforcement situation in Monroe County?

According to Russ the study was part of an analysis of the crime problem in a 15-county region of Northeastern Pennsylvania.

Stating the commission's study is the first such investigation of a predominantly rural area, Russ said information gathered in the region would be used to serve any locally seeking to improve law enforcement.

Giving an example of the commission's findings, Russ said one thing learned in the past year and a half was that police forces should be based on communications systems and not necessarily political boundaries.

Patrol system impossible

"People think police protection means policemen on patrol," Russ said. "In Monroe County you can't set up a police patrol system." He said better police protection would be based on communications.

Communications are based on business considerations, Russ said, using the three telephone systems in Monroe County as an example. He said police protection should take into account the existing telephone communications and not political jurisdiction alone.

In the region studied by the commission it was discovered nine telephone systems serve four counties.

The second phase of the commission's report, expected within weeks, will concentrate on communication networks.

Russ said the commission has split the 15 county region into 21 police communications districts. He said he could provide local officials with estimated costs of improving police communications if they asked for the information.

But first local officials are going to have to admit problems if there are any, identify problems areas, and seek the commission's help.

No longer, according to one county official, can the pending Governor's Justice Commission report be used to stall action on the county's law enforcement.

Maximum of six stories

High rise limited in S-burg

BY A.P. CESARE
Pocono Record Reporter

STROUDSBURG — Municipal officials rejected a plan Wednesday night to permit construction of eight-story buildings within the borough.

The proposal was submitted by Victor Rodite, borough planning consultant, to a joint session of Stroudsburg Council and planning commission members.

Rodite, of Michael Cabot Associates, informed the members that such construction for high rise density would permit flexibility for the builders. He said the claim that local fire department equipment could not service the structure was not valid.

But Alice Baumgartner, planning commission member, and a majority of the other 18 officials in attendance, disapproved of the proposal and settled for a maximum of six stories.

Mrs. Baumgartner said the borough would lose its basic charm, and the high rise buildings would then drive out the middle and upper class with a hard core element remaining.

She was joined by Dr. Bruce Dunlop who said "We are changing the entire town. Who needs it?"

Playground director named

STROUDSBURG — Charles Winters, Stroudsburg High School teacher, was named playground director Wednesday night by Stroudsburg Council.

The salary was set at $125 per week.

Council delayed naming an assistant director and the selection of two life guards. They may appoint a life guard to also serve as an assistant to Winters. The assistant's salary is $110 per week.

Council also accepted the bid of E.M. Rinehart, Inc., Stroudsburg for the purchase of one 1972 26,000 gross vehicle weight, Class 8 dump truck. The bid price was $67,337.

Two other bids received came from Gray Chevrolet, at $72,360 and from Aboloff Pontiac for $70,000.

Spring trash collection was set for the week of May 8. Council set aside only one week for the collections.

Councilman James Kitchen again spoke out against the street sweeper operations. Kitchen had contended in previous meetings that the operations were not being carried out properly. He said the whole program "was ridiculous."

He said if they (the workers) don't want to do it right, replace them.

Chest X-ray unit in Eastburg

EAST STROUDSBURG — A mobile X-ray unit, sponsored by the Tuberculosis Society of Northeastern Pennsylvania, will be at the American Legion in East Stroudsburg from 1 to 5 and 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. today.

The unit will be in front of Wyckoff's in Stroudsburg in the same hours Friday.

Rodite charged that he "did not want to disagree that the town has charm," but said eight-story structures would not adversely affect the town.

The planning consultant said the eight-story proposal was a major change in the rezoning studies being carried out.

Another major change, he said, was that multi-family dwellings would not be permitted anywhere in the borough. Only under the heading "special use" would such structures be considered.

Three sections of the borough under the new proposal would be permitted to contain high rise buildings. Zoned R-3, the areas would be at Dreher-Stofflet Street; an area at Ninth and Tenth Streets; and in the First Ward.

Council and planning member are studying the zoning revision and hope to have the final results by July. Wednesday's meeting was one of several during which the officials discuss the various proposals.

Another session has been planned for Tuesday, April 18 beginning at 7 p.m.

Another change adopted was the lowering of the maximum building coverage area from 40 per cent to 30 per cent in order to allow greater open area. Maximum area for recreation was increased from 200 square feet to 300 square feet to also provide greater open spaces.

Rodite told the members that the First Ward section of the borough would become an area zoned light commercial, heavy commercial and industrial. The emphasis would be away from residential structures.

He said the first Ward was "a logical area" for industry and light business. The existing residences could remain, but he indicated the industries and business did not show trends of leaving the area, but, did, in fact, show greater growth.

Cavaliers nip N.D. by 3-1

EAST STROUDSBURG — East Stroudsburg spotted Notre Dame of East Stroudsburg one run and then came back with three in the fifth inning Wednesday to back up Dan Whittaker's one-hitter as the Cavaliers took a 3-1 baseball victory.

The 0-2 Spartans took a 1-0 lead in the fourth inning when Sobinski singled to right and went to second on Steve Martz' overthrow. After moving to third on an infield out, Sobinski scored while Mike Coleman, who had walked, was in a rundown.

But the 4-0 Cavaliers stormed back the next inning with three runs. Gene Dickison doubled to left and Charlie Gallagher walked. Dickison scored on Coleman's error which allowed Kim Walck on base.

Tony Romano of Stroudsburg heads toward tape ahead of Mike Zimmerman of Whitehall Wednesday to anchor the Mounties' two-mile relay victory.

Dominance in field events leads to Mounties victory

STROUDSBURG — Stroudsburg, which has had difficulty in the field events, outscored Whitehall 33-3 in those events Wednesday and went on to beat the Zephyrs, 60-58, for its first track victory of the season.

Mark Adams was the only double winner for the 1-1 Mounties, taking the 400-yard run in 51.6 and the triple jump in 40-10 1/2. He also anchored the winning one-mile relay with a 51.4.

Tony Romano turned in a standout day. Anchoring the two-mile relay, he came from behind to win the event. He teamed with Gary Olson.

Kevin Hay and Bill Strab for an 8:56.5.

He finished second in the 880-yard run, turning in a 2:10.2 behind Jim Bechtold of Whitehall's winning 2:10.0. He then came back to run the second leg on the winning one-mile relay team, running a 57.0 split. Besides Romano and Adams, other members were Olson and Steve Angle.

Barry Johns won the shot put for the Mounties. Jim Keiper the pole vault. Mike Uklenowich the discus and Keith Wallace the high jump.

Marc Davis took a second in the 100-yard dash and thirds in the long jump and 220-yard dash.

Warriors win final event to topple Kutztown, 73-72

KUTZTOWN — East Stroudsburg State College took the final event, the mile relay to defeat Kutztown, 73-72, in a track and field meet Wednesday.

The Warriors' quartet of Chuck Dedmon, Bill Stohl, Jack Sabol and Glenn Renick won the relay by about 40 yards in a time of 3:28.0.

ESSC's John Briner won the three mile and tied George Vance and Jim Koch for first place in the mile. The Warriors swept the hurdles with Bob Garis taking the 120-yard highs and Dennis Morrissey winning the 440 yard intermediates.

Other ESSC winners were Ed Long, who has been injured and took only one throw in winning the javelin, and Len Jenkins, who captured the pole vault.

ESSC's record is now 1-1 outdoors. Kutztown is 0-2.

Dropped fly gives ESSC baseball tie

ITHACA, N.Y. — Cornell centerfielder Jim Gillin dropped a fly ball with two out in the ninth inning to allow East Stroudsburg State College to score a run and gain a 1-1 baseball decision Wednesday.

The game was called at the end of nine innings. Scott Myers led off the ESSC ninth with a triple to right field. After one out, Dave Wilson was intentionally walked, but pinch-runner Ray Gallagher was picked off first base for the second out.

Lee Hunter lofted a fly to shallow center field which Gillin called for and then dropped. On the play, Myers ran home with the tying run.

Cornell threatened in the bottom of the ninth as two errors by third baseman Al Frick and an intentional walk loaded the bases with one out.

Strike by hockey players vanishes without support

CHICAGO (UPI)—The threat of a strike by National Hockey League players over the allowable curve of hockey sticks vanished Wednesday almost as quickly as it arose.

The Stanley Cup playoff games will go on as scheduled, as far as the Chicago Black Hawks are concerned because: —They failed to enlist the support of other NHL teams in their protest against "sneaky" double checks of stick curvatures.

—It was decided after a chat with Coach Billy Reay that management should properly handle the stick dispute.

The issue came up last Thursday when Dennis Hull of the Hawks was fined $500 after his stick was found to be curved beyond the permissible one-half inch over the length of the blade.

The Black Hawks were irritated because, they said, Hull's stick had been approved by NHL Supervisor Dutch Van Deelen after a game with the Penguins in Pittsburgh.

League President Clarence Campbell then took a look at the stick, ordered a close measurement and found it to be curving seven-eighths of an inch. He accused Hull of cheating and imposed the fine.

The Black Hawks discussed the issue with Alan Eagleson, NHL Players' Association counsel, and then voted unanimously to seek the support of other league players in a refusal to play in any remaining cup games until the checking of sticks was discontinued.

The Black Hawks learned that Boston Bruins, the first club they sought for support, were not interested.

Lakers tie NBA series

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI)—Jim McMillian poured in a career high 42 points including a pair of crucial free throws with 1:01 left as the Los Angeles Lakers defeated the Milwaukee Bucks 135-134 Wednesday night to even their NBA playoff series at one win each.

McMillian's free throws put the Lakers ahead to stay at 131-130. Jerry West and Happy Hairston each scored a basket for Los Angeles in the final minute while Kareem Jabbar, who finished with 40 points, had a pair of field goals for the Bucks' final points.

The best-of-seven Western Conference final series now moves to Milwaukee for the third game Friday night. The teams meet Sunday, again at Milwaukee, and return here next Tuesday night.

Beaten 93-72 in the first playoff game Sunday, the Lakers were a different team in the second contest as McMillian fired in 25 of his points in the second half, 17 of them in the third period. The 6-foot-5 second year forward from Columbia previously had a high of 41 points against Boston this season.

West, despite missing nine straight shots from the floor in the second half, came through with 28 points and Gail Goodrich tallied 25. Hairston added 17 points.

For Milwaukee, Lucius Allen helped Jabbar out with a 23-point performance while Curtis Perry had 18.

With Milwaukee in front, 130-129, McMillian was fouled by Jon McGlocklin while shooting a jump shot. He made both of his free throws and West connected on a 22-footer with 27 seconds to go to make the score 133-130.

Jabbar brought Milwaukee within one point again with a 10-foot jumper with 22 seconds left but Hairston hit on a lay-up with six seconds remaining to put the Lakers on top 135-132. Then Jabbar canned a jump shot with two seconds left.

McMillian, who had only six points and was three for 20 from the field Sunday, finished with 16 of 25 from the floor in his 42-point effort.

The Lakers enjoyed a 72.66 halftime advantage and were in front 106-96 after three periods.

Trenton State tops Warriors

STROUDSBURG — Trenton State swept the last two matches to defeat East Stroudsburg State College, 10-8, in golf Wednesday.

The Lions' Hank Barber and Doug Wilson each won three points at the fifth and sixth positions. ESSC's Bruce Exley took medalist honors with 76 and won three points as did teammate Brian Deluca.

It was ESSC's golf opener.

Foreign players may suffer if net factions compromise

COPENHAGEN (UPI)—If the U.S. Lawn Tennis Association makes peace with Lamar Hunt's World Championship Tennis organization, and thus permits WCT players to compete in the U.S. Open all foreign players would be banned from Forest Hills, the International Lawn Tennis Federation indicated today.

Basil Reay, of the ITF, commented on rumors that the USLTA was ready to do business with Hunt in time for the Sept. Forest Hills tournament.

Reay said: "I've heard such whispers and I don't believe them for one minute. It would do tremendous harm to the game and no foreign player would be allowed at Forest Hills and no American permitted to play elsewhere in the world."

The ITF meeting is scheduled for Friday. The tennis directors of many nations also were here to discuss the South African situation in Davis Cup play, responding to a request for such a meeting from ESSA vice-president Walter Elock.

The South Africans were readmitted to Cup play earlier this year, after being banned from the competition because of South Africa's official racial policies.

Elock said he failed to understand how at least four members of the seven man committee on Davis Cup play had voted in January to readmit the South Africans after a two year banishment.

Reay said he had refused to predict the outcome on the Davis Cup matter, which will be discussed today. "All I know is the issue is dynamic. I hope we escape from a room alive," he said.

The Soviet delegate would only say "you know where we stand in this matter." The Soviet and other East European countries made it clear early that they would boycott the tournament if they were scheduled to face South Africa, which would meet Czechoslovakia if both nations made the Zone final. The

ESSC gains 9-0 golf victory

EAST STROUDSBURG — East Stroudsburg State College faced its first Pennsylvania Conference tennis opponent of the season Wednesday and swamped Shippenburg, 9-0.

Chuck Ackerman raised his record to 9-4 with an easy win at third singles while the doubles team of Ackerman and Bill Zech upped its mark to 8-4.

Barry Cohen, playing sixth singles, won his first match after two defeats. Cohen was a golf letter-winner for ESSC last year and a former PIAA District 11 golf champion for Stroudsburg High School.

ESSC's tennis record is now 6-7.

Monroe, Barnett 'doubtful' for Knicks

NEW YORK (UPI)—Earl Monroe and Dick Barnett, two of the most experienced guards in the National Basketball Association, were listed by the New York Knicks Wednesday as "doubtful" for tonight's Eastern Conference playoff final opener against the Celtics in Boston.

Monroe, a key to New York's opening round triumph over Baltimore, twisted his right ankle during the second period of Tuesday's clincher against the Bullets. Team physician, Dr. Andrew Patterson, had Monroe take precautionary X-rays to make sure there is no serious damage.

Barnett, who injured his back earlier in the Baltimore playoffs, played less than a minute Tuesday, merely entering the game to give a foul on two occasions. The veteran backcourt star was careful not to exert too much pressure on his body during the brief entrances. In the practice warmup Barnett could be seen favoring his back.

"My back feels much better," Barnett says. You could almost feel, however, that there was more prayer than promise in his tone.

man, who hasn't seen too much action—Dean Meminger.

Winning the first round kept the players' hopes fresh for a $187,000 team jackpot. The Knicks earned $12,500 for finishing second in the Atlantic Division of the National Basketball Association and another $32,000 for beating Baltimore in the conference semifinals.

A victory over Boston would add an additional $42,500 and then there's the giant $100,000 grand prize for the NBA champion.

The Knicks have been over this road previously. They won the league title in 1970, but there is more in the money pie today.

There is a championship tilt to the Knicks players' viewpoint of success after the Baltimore series. They believe the six-game set turned out to be a proving ground for their ability to get past Boston and take on the winner of the Los Angeles-Milwaukee Western Conference playoffs.

Last season, when Baltimore eliminated the Knicks from the playoffs and Milwaukee swept the Bullets in four straight, the Bucks said they felt it wasn't a true championship round. They would rather have played New York for the crown.

Jeff Cohen, assistant general manager of the Celtics, feels the same way.

"If Baltimore had won the series over New York," Cohen said, "there would have been a cloud hanging over the series with the Celtics. After all, the Celtics and Knicks were the best teams in the Eastern Conference and it's only fitting they should meet."

The Knicks and Celtics split the season's six-game series.

Boston was involved in a physical battle before the Celtics downed the Atlanta

Hawks in the other Eastern series.

"This upcoming series is going to be a knockout one," said chief scout John Killilea after watching New York oust Baltimore. "It'll be just as physical as the one we had with Atlanta, especially with guys like Dave DeBusschere and Bill Bradley in there. I suspect they'll have Jerry Lucas going outside and up the middle."

Baltimore suspected the same thing, but couldn't gain the little-bent Lucas, who finally joined a team that got past the first round playoffs.

Lee Trevino gestures during practice round.

Ailing Trevino vows to win tourney

PENSACOLA, Fla. (UPI)—Lee Trevino, out from under the shadow of absent Jack Nicklaus, was complaining about his back Wednesday but still determined to be a winner in the $150,000 Monsanto Open.

"I hurt my back early this week stepping out of the shower," explained the reigning champ of the U. S. and British Opens. "But you can bet I'm going to be out there when they tee off Thursday. I need a win."

The Monsanto Open starts today over the relatively easy Pensacola Country club course, laid by picturesque Pensacola Bay.

Most of this year's top touring pros are on hand but the star-studded list of absentees include Nicklaus, Gary Player, Arnold Palmer and Billy Casper—and that's enough to take the sheen off any tournament.

Trevino, who complains he hasn't played up to his usual standards since he had his appendix removed last August, although he did win the Sahara Invitational two months later, was 12 over par in last week's Masters. But he has insisted all along that the Augusta National course isn't suited for his low-hitting game.

Pensacola is entirely different. This sandy, virtually flat, 6,679-yard course is a birdie paradise for the pros. Gay Brewer was 26 under par when he won here in 1967 and George Archer was 20 under when he won here the following year.

When Gene Littler, who is not back to defend his championship because of a recent operation, won at 8-under last year, it was the fewest strokes under par for any winner here in 40 years.

Trevino's chief threats this week figure to be Archer, Bob Murphy, England's Tony Jacklin and two "young turks" of the PGA tour—Jim Jamieson and Jerry Heard.

The 6-foot-6 Archer is currently second in this year's money race, only $475 under the $100,000 mark and a win here this week, worth $30,000, would leave him barely $5,000 behind the pace-setting Nicklaus.

Heard (Citrus) and Jacklin (Jacksonville) already have won here in Florida and native Floridian Murphy always does well here. Jamieson, a streak player, shot a course-record 63 at Orlando, a course that has some of the same features as Pensacola, and made a run at Nicklaus at last week's Masters.

Although Trevino complains of a "pain in the lower part of my back that bothers me when I bend over to putt," the "Merry Mex" shot a 68 in a preliminary pro-am round on Tuesday and was playing equally well in the regular pro-am Wednesday.

"I've had so many things bothering me of late that one or two more pains isn't going to get in my way," said Trevino, currently 11th on the money list with $46,394.

According to Trevino, his trouble at Augusta stemmed from the fact that he needed to hit a high, soft shot there while "I like to beat the ball."

The Monsanto Open offers a final chance for any pro who hasn't won a tournament in the past year to get into next week's Tournament of Champions at La Costa, Calif.

Defense rests in Sample case

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—The defense rested Wednesday in the federal trial of Johnny Sample shortly after the former pro football star testified he was at a racetrack winning $7,000 on the day the government claims he cashed a number of stolen checks.

In the third day of the trial, the defense rested its case before U. S. District Court Judge Daniel H. Huyett III and a jury of 10 men and two women after presenting 14 character witnesses.

The witnesses included former pro football player Clarence Peaks, and former lightweight boxing champion Bob Montgomery.

After the defense rested, Judge Huyett excused the jury for the day and said they would get the case today following closing arguments by attorneys for both sides and the charge by the judge.

Sample took the stand in his own defense at his federal court trial on charges of endorsing or cashing 25 stolen government checks totaling $7,500.

On Tuesday, a bank teller who was a government witness, testified that last April 5 he cashed seven checks for the former defensive back, who now operates a ticket agency here.

Sample, 34, testified in his own defense that last April 5 he went to the Aqueduct race track in New York to place bets on a daily double horse he had been tipped about.

Sample identified the tip in the first race that day as World Prince.

Shocks boxing world with fix claims

Fighter sees no 'accidental death'

SEATTLE (UPI)—Now that brash and outspoken middleweight boxer Fraser Scott has announced his career included two fixed fights, he says that if he should meet an "accidental" death it will have been no accident.

The 23-year-old redhead from Kirkland, Wash., startled the ring world Tuesday by abruptly declaring it quits and telling a television interviewer: "Money buys fights nowadays. It bought me two times."

"The last year and a half, money and boxing have meant nothing to me," he said. "I've been sort of a reporter. I've been delving into boxing."

"When this thing first started, I said, 'wow, this is really something. I can't believe this is happening. This is the kind of stuff you read about in the Godfather'."

Asked if he ever had been threatened, Scott replied, "not at. But I'd like to say right now that if I meet an accidental death, it's not accidental."

Scott is to appear before the State Athletic Commission May 2.

Meanwhile, he said his attorney has advised him not to give names and dates of the two fights he said were fixed. He did say that the two bouts were outside Washington State.

In a television interview last week, Scott had said that Seattle middleweight Mike Lankester had been involved in a questionable fight.

In Tuesday's interview he said: "The few remarks I said about you (Lankester) I take back. This is sort of a public apology."

Scott said he is writing a book about boxing which he called a "deception" involving big money.

His manager, Joe West, said he couldn't believe Scott would throw a fight.

"He's fought five world ranked fighters, knocking out two of them, and he lost three decisions," said West. "Which one could I say was funny?"

West said he had no knowledge of any fixed fights.

By RUTHE B. YOUNG Pocono Mt. Kennel Club

Now that the match show season is here, we will be seeing some pretty handsome puppies starting their show careers. To the novice, match shows are the perfect practice ground in which to start young pups since they can be entered as early as three months of age.

Besides giving the pups themselves experience by getting them accustomed to being examined by a judge and learning to conduct themselves amongst other dogs, the owner-handler gains ring experience and learns to show his dog to his best advantage.

No championship points are awarded at match shows, but otherwise they resemble in every other way the conditions the dogs and their handler will be facing when they advance to point show competition.

Some of the best dogs never leave the show ring simply because their potential goes unrecognized, or their owner merely want a pet.

One of the first St. Bernards we owned was bought from a woman who had purchased him as a pet, which he remained till we got him at two years of age. We thought he was a beautiful Saint, and in our opinion as good or better than some champions we had seen in kennels. One day we learned of a match show coming up.

That Saturday morn, Rajah was bathed and groomed; Sunday morning we packed dog and off we went.

There were 16 Saints entered that day. Rajah and my husband entered the ring ... first prize! They went in again with the other class winners ... Best of Breed! A third time they entered the ring for the working group ... a third in the Group! Needless to say, we were thrilled. Rajah later finished his championship, and sired hundreds of puppies, many of them champions themselves, his grand-puppies are now winning at shows.

If the dog in your backyard is a really good one, you owe it to the breed to get him out of that yard into the show ring!

Match day is coming and what to do? First, we'll assume your dog will be clean and well groomed. His ears and teeth will be clean, toe nails clipped, and muzzle whiskers cut.

As Rajah came out of the breed ring that day in 1965, one spectator asked why his whiskers weren't cut. What an embarrassing situation: we hadn't known they should be cut. Quick thinking resulted in my reply, "Stroudsburg's having their Centennial this year, and he's letting his beard grow!"

For the handler: wear comfortable, but neat clothing; flat-heeled, non-slip shoes. For men: slacks, shirt, tie and jacket; for women: pantsuits or neat slacks suits; please, no mini-skirts or see-through blouses (the judge is there to see the dog).

At the match: be considerate of other exhibitors and spectators; use exercise pens if available, or exercise your dog away from footpath areas. Exercise him again before entering the ring since ring accidents while sometimes unavoidable, do delay the judging.

NEXT WEEK: A first, the Poconos' own match show.

Caught short in a tall dog neighborhood is little Chu-Min, a one-and-a-half-year-old male Pekinese who can't help but look wistfully at taller-than-average fire hydrant in Zanesville, Ohio. (UPI Telephoto)

South Koreans watching north celebration uneasily

Tokyo (UPI)—Not even in Mao Tse-tung's China are the politics of a nation focused on a single person to the degree they are in North Korea and to all intents and purposes, Premier Kim Il-sung is the state.

Kim, who celebrates his 60th birthday Saturday, not only is North Korea's prime minister but also the army's field marshal and the only political party's secretary general. And he has ruled with an iron hand for 27 years.

Kim's birthday will be the occasion for the biggest celebration North Korea has seen since Kim and his guerrilla soldiers marched into the peninsula-sized country with the Soviet army at the end of World War II.

South Korea, which beat back a North Korean invasion with United Nations and American help in the Korean War of 1950-53, is watching the whole spectacle uneasily. In Sino-

Japanese-Korean culture, a man's 60th year is supposed to be one of the most important of his life. South Korean President Park Chung-hee and his advisers say they fear it will be the occasion for renewal of the Korean War.

That belief is not shared in Washington, where Secretary of State William Rogers told newsmen March 8 there are indications North Korea wants to improve its relations with the United States.

Assistant U.S. secretary of State Marshall Green also is convinced "competition" between North and South Korea is taking a political, a diplomatic form.

Dignitaries from Communist countries and other North Korean countries are expected to arrive in the North Korean capital of Pyongyang by the plane load for Kim's birthday festivities.

Americans may see something of it on television. There have been persistent reports that one TV network and two American newspapers will be allowed to send reporters to Pyongyang for the event.

If so, it would be in keeping with the diplomatic offensive North Korea has launched in an effort to break out of its long isolation, and to undermine support for South Korea in the international community.

Time has not dimmed Kim's ambition to unite all Korea under Communist rule, an ambition frustrated mainly by the United States ever since World War II. He has been banging heads with America longer than any Communist leader in Asia.

China's Mao was still fighting a revolution from the caves of Yenan, and the late Ho Chi Minh was battling the French in the jungles of Indochina when Kim came to power in 1945.

Selling gets more than murder

Texans protest stiff pot laws

DALLAS (UPI)—Lee Otis Johnson has served 47 months of a 30-year prison sentence for giving an undercover agent one marijuana cigarette. A federal judge has ruled he either must be given a new trial or freed.

If the federal judge has not intervened, Johnson would have had to serve 10 years, less allowances for good behavior, before he could even have been considered for parole. His case has become a cause celebre in Texas among young people and opponents of "punitive" sentences.

His supporters feel so strongly about him that they booed Gov. Preston Smith from the stage at the University of Houston—Houston is where Johnson was convicted—with cries of "Free Lee Otis!"

Smith later claimed he thought the students were yelling, "Frijoles! Frijoles!" or Spanish for beans.

Against Johnson's 30 years, his friends can contract the 13 years to which an El Paso, Tex., jury sentenced Dolphus Jack Brown last year for murdering his mother and father.

Or, to take another marijuana case: Duane Thomas, a black like Johnson, and a star football player for the Dallas Cowboys, was put on five years' probation in Greenville, Tex., in January for having enough marijuana to make five cigarettes.

There is a legal difference between cases. Under Texas law, giving away marijuana qualifies as selling it. Both the law and juries look more coldly upon selling than possessing.

Johnson's other supporters claim other factors were involved. Johnson was a leader of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee in May, 1967, when a white policeman was killed and another policeman wounded in a riot at largely black Texas Southern University.

He was regarded as a leading agitator of black rebels and a spokesman for them. Johnson's friends charge that the undercover agent worked himself into a position of friendship with Johnson and that was how Johnson offered him the incriminating cigarette.

On Jan. 19, U.S. District Judge Carl O. Bue of Houston ordered that Johnson be given a new trial in the same court that convicted him or be freed by April 19.

"It is unlikely that the trial court in considering the evidence presented to it as contained in the record ever recognized the degree of hostility toward petitioner which apparently permeated the community by that time," Bue commented.

Houston District Attorney Carroll Vance neither wants Johnson to have a new trial or be released. He has appealed Bue's order to the U.S. 5th Circuit Court and Bue's order cannot be made final until Vance has exhausted all appeals. It could take months.

Other states furnish examples of harsh prison sentences. For instance, a man in Louisiana was sentenced to 50 years in 1957 for peddling $5 worth of marijuana.

He managed to get out of prison and escaped to New York. New Orleans District Attorney Jim Garrison agreed with New York authorities that the sentence was on the long side and consented to the man's being released.

But Texas leads the county in sock-it-to-'em prison sentences. Last April 8, a jury in Dallas sentenced Robert Floyd Angle to 2,500 years for murdering Jack Katz, 64, while robbing his liquor store, and wounding Mrs. Katz. This was 500 years more than the prosecutor had asked for.

Dallas juries have handed out at least six sentences of 1,000 years or more for heroin peddling, murder and rape. Joseph Franklin Sils was given 1,000 years for a cleaning shop robbery that netted him $73.10.

He appealed on the ground that the prosecutor should not have been allowed to tell the jury which convicted and sentenced him about 33 other felony convictions.

The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals upheld the sentence but urged the legislature to do something about astronomical sentences.

Criminal Appeals Court Judge Truman Roberts said such sentences "serve no purpose" and noted that Sils would be eligible for parole after 20 years "even if his sentence had been a million years."

"This is the law," said Pat Bullock, a member of the Texas Board of Pardons and Paroles. "But a long sentence does have this effect: a parole board member will take a long, hard look at a man with a 1,000 year sentence before paroling him the day he is eligible for parole."

Two of the state's biggest criminal lawyers, Warren Burnett of Odessa, and Percy Foreman of Houston, are angered by 1,000-year sentences.

"They are indicative of an illness on the part of society, a knee jerk reaction out of fear, ignorance and lack of leadership," Burnett said.

"I think the (big) penalties hold the courts up to ridicule," Foreman said.

"I think they (1,000-year sentences) tend to encourage prosecutors to get into a contest," said Charles Tessmer of Dallas, another of the state's top criminal lawyers.

"They just encourage a prosecutor to try to get notches, but there is a possibility they cut down crime."

Dallas District Attorney Henry Wade, who first thought of the 1,000 year sentence as a solution to the growing crime rate, more than agrees.

"During the last half of 1971, filings on Part 1 offenses (murder, armed robbery, rape) fell off 10 per cent in the county," Wade said. "The police crime rate fell off 8 or 10 per cent. I think all of this had something to do with it."

"But I think the biggest deterrent to crime is fear of apprehension. No. 2 is swift and sure punishment. And No. 3 is severity of punishment."

Wade is one of the most successful prosecutors in the country. He and his assistants sent eight men to death row in Huntsville prison last year and they have already sent three this year.

Ann Landers

Inhuman care

Dear Ann Landers: I don't know who else to complain to so I am writing to you. Maybe you can help.

My next door neighbors are a lovely couple. Last week they had four children. Today they have three. Their baby, the only boy, died mysteriously in his sleep. He wasn't sick a day. The autopsy revealed that the baby died from what was termed "crib death," the cause of which is not known. Some physicians say it's a mysterious virus that strikes suddenly. Others say it's suffocation from too much covering.

The parents are heartbroken. But what I am writing about is this: What can be done about the inhuman treatment the parents received when they brought the baby to the emergency room of the hospital and again, when they were interrogated by police? Even the people at the morgue viewed them with hostility and suspicion. These grief-stricken people were treated as if they had killed the baby. Can you imagine subjecting distraught parents to a third degree? What can be done about such gross callousness and brutal insensitivity?

Outraged Friends

Dear Friends: Several hundred young children die every year as a result of being battered by parents. This, of course, is what the questioning was about. There is no excuse, however, for such inhumanity as you describe — especially when the baby bore no signs of having been abused. A better system must be devised and two organizations are working on it. The National Foundation For Sudden Infant Death, 1501 Broadway, New York, N.Y., 10036 (telephone 212-563-4630), and The Guild for Infant Survival, 6822 Brompton Road, Baltimore, Maryland, 21207 (telephone 301-944-2502). Such indignities as your neighbors suffered should be reported to both organizations.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a middle-aged woman who is trying to lose some weight. I now know that crash diets, pills, shots and the rest of that stuff are not for me. I need to make up my mind that I am no longer able to eat chocolate fudge sundaes at midnight, candy bars between meals, buttered popcorn in movies and a can of mixed nuts in front of the TV.

What I need to know is this: How can I decide what my weight should be? Every chart I've seen is different. The chart in my calorie book gives me too much leeway. If I weighed what my doctor's chart suggested I'd look like a scarecrow. So how does a person know?

New Me Coming Up

Dear New You: Your doctor's personal recommendation is better than any chart. But as a rule of thumb, you should weigh approximately what you did when you were between 18 and 25 years of age assuming you were not overweight or pregnant at that time.

Dear Ann Landers: I read the letter from "Kissless Bride" whose groom didn't kiss her after the minister said, "I now pronounce you man and wife." After 20 years she was still so unhappy about it she had to write to Ann Landers.

I have a view on the subject which my husband shares. We feel that a kiss is an intimate expression of affection and should be a private affair. We decided not to kiss at our own wedding and several people complained — as if they were cheated out of something.

When this letter appears in print (if it does), it may move some young couples who are contemplating marriage to re-think the matter.

No Show

Dear No: The important thing is not whether or not Malsonette reports Baroness Nina van Pallandt "has a so-so voice, a fabulous smile, dressed well in theatrical-chic style, and the audience liked her." Nina's the lass who tripped off to the Bahamas with lie-detected Clifford Irving to enjoy the out-hours.

Helen Hayes wrote her friends at Ohrbach's store to apologize for stealing the fashion show when she accidentally got caught out on the runway as the music started: "My embarrassment was acute and I wouldn't blame you if I was never asked again," she wrote O's Mark Klausner. Mark howled, "She merely made the show!" ... Dana Andrews now doesn't care who knows he was an alcoholic. He'll tape TV spots urging others to take the AA road that led him back to his career ... Have you seen all the Loch Ness monster stories? They always hit the headlines right at the start of the tourist season.

The Kennedy mystique has a couple more spinoffs: JFK's former White House chef Rene Verdon opened the Trianon Restaurant in San Francisco; Annemarie Huste, who cooked for Jackie (then Kennedy) Onassis and blabbed all, just opened her new cooking school here (161 Lexington Ave.); ... Steakschmeaks: the Palm Restaurant upped its lobster prices ($10 to $22 depending on size) due to the wild zoom in crustacean supplier costs.

Dr. Benjamin Gilbert, "Dr. Broadway" who tends the actors and audiences of all Bdwy. shows & the Metopera, will get the "Help N.Y. City Award" to be given at the Grenadier Restaurant near the UN. Great choice. During various actors strikes (including off-Bdwy.) Dr. Ben treated all showfolk without charging a cent.

"Follies" celebrated a year on Bdwy. Fine show. Catch it before July 1 when it moves to California with the whole cast — Alexis Smith, John McMartin, Fifi D'Orsay, Ethel Shutta, Mary McCarty et al ... Harper's Bazaar photoed Dorothy Collins of the "Follies" star-cast for its June issue, and she looked more glamorous than the pro model posed with the old Hit Parade Kid ... Late-late flash: aforelauded Dr. Ben Gilbert's in the hospital. Slipped disc ... All that noise about huge businesses — but more than 5,000,000 independent businesses are thriving today, mostly small; the larger family-owned earn more than some of the conglomerates.

Aging Bdwy.-H'wood actress bounced a $200-plus check at the Exotique lingerie joint. Paid it off after a few firm coaxings. Had to borrow from actor-pals. Sad. Great ad for saving your money while you make it ... The U.S. Dep't of Agriculture recently got headlines for reducing the fat content of some hotdogs. It didn't explain its reduction was from 28 per cent all the way down to 27.9 per cent.

What's a $125,000 a year orthopedic surgeon do when he gets a heart attack at age 39 from the huge tension of his humanitarian trade. His name is Gary Mann, he looks like Al Birt, and he used to relax playing trumpet; so doctors advised him to quit the tension and work at his brassy relaxation — and now Gary's a star jazz-blues performer you'll be hearing more from ... Now 50, the ex-Marine captain (of Carlson's Raiders fame; he stopped ten bullets, five in his face on bloody Bougainville) inherits a musical bent honestly: his dad tooted clarinet with Sousa and the Ringling Bros. Circus. He's still licensed to practice medicine; instead practices trumpet.

Early-TV dancer Mary Ellen Terry wed Dr. Frederick J. Becker, head of pathology at Bellevue ... Former Cornell coach John O'Neill tells us this seasonal tale: stopping for coffee at Grand Central on the way home to Conn., another black coffee drinker intoned for all to meditate: "Boy, is my wife going to be mad at me! I came down for the St. Patrick's Day Parade!" Said precisely 12 days after St. Patty's Day. He explained: "Never fight the N.Y. cops unless you have a Marine platoon with you," as he headed for his delayed Connecticut commute.

The furclad mugger who attacked Cygna Conly, Believe-It-Or-Not Robert Ripley's lifelong aide a few days before she died, was caught by cops and identified by Cygna, has gotten off mugg-free. The principal witness died: Cygna.

Ralph Nader, meet Lora Hull, 76, of Atlanta, Ga. Mrs. Hull's been driving the same car 40 years, a '31 model-A Ford ... Funny commercial of the week: Rocky Graziano TV-spicing the Columbia Records "Godfather" album.

The papers missed this delightful city-roundup: Central Park Children's Zoo Shetland pony escaped, jeered the officers and booted the final capture.

It's inflation all over: French papers just zoomed prices a few centimes ... The beauty dancing with Forrest Tucker at the 17 Room was his daughter Brook. She'll make her acting debut with Tuck late next month in a new comedy, "Rock-a-Bye-Daddy," by Chicago Monsignor John O'Donnell. If it goes well, they'll dance it to Bdwy. in the fall.

"Country Girl" title-roler Maureen Stapleton's townhouse has been robbed and robbed and robbed. Three times.

Author now knows better

L.A. police novel hit

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — L. P. Wambaugh, the Los Angeles cop who wrote "The New Centurians" and then sold the movie rights, has written another hit novel about LAPD. This time Wambaugh, a detective sergeant, is considering more knowledgeable about police business methods in the last time around. He sold "The New Centurians" to a picture company and it became a best seller. He knows better. "I'm not selling the picture rights to this book too soon," he said. "I've got to make a decision," he said, "and it's causing me a lot of anxiety. I love being a cop. It's more exciting, more interesting than being a writer. And it's really not a dangerous profession. "But if a man has a tremendous compulsion to write there's hardly any way to fight it. There's great satisfaction in writing." Wambaugh's fellow cops share a general feeling of pride in his success and enjoy guessing the identity of his fictional characters. "We don't mind being called cops, fuzz or even pigs. They've all become clichés," Wambaugh said. "What really bugs us is going to parties out of uniform only to have some bore find out we're cops. Then, inevitably, he spends the rest of the night telling you about some unjust traffic ticket he got. "Those are the kinds of guys second book before the first was published. It was hard on my wife and family. "I'd work at my job as a cop eight or ten hours a day, then go home and work at the typewriter. I don't want to do that again." Wambaugh would like to remain a cop until he qualifies for a 20-year pension at 40 per cent pay, eight years from now. On the other hand, he's itching to write a third novel — about policemen, naturally — that is floating around his subconscious. "I've got to make a decision," he said, "and it's causing me a lot of anxiety. I love being a cop. It's more exciting, more interesting than being a writer. And it's really not a dangerous profession. "But if a man has a tremendous compulsion to write there's hardly any way to fight it. There's great satisfaction in writing." Wambaugh's fellow cops share a general feeling of pride in his success and enjoy guessing the identity of his fictional characters. "We don't mind being called cops, fuzz or even pigs. They've all become clichés," Wambaugh said. "What really bugs us is going to parties out of uniform only to have some bore find out we're cops. Then, inevitably, he spends the rest of the night telling you about some unjust traffic ticket he got. "Those are the kinds of guys that might make me decide to become a full-time writer." Wambaugh doesn't know about the other — perhaps more numerous — bores at parties who will ask him the "real" identity of the characters in his books. Bit Parts: Roy Rogers and Dale Evans will star in three hour-long holiday special in 1972-73 television season. Cloris Leachman will star in "Haunts of the Very Rich," a movie for television. Lily Tomlin, of "Rowan and Martin's Laugh-In" has asked to be released from her contract.

KANSAS City, Mo. (UPI) — Soft-spoken Allen D. Pearson is a government servant with the awesome job of trying to save lives when tornadoes strike the United States.

Forecasting violent weather is no longer a significant problem for Pearson and his band of experts. The tough part is spreading the word that a family picnic might turn into a catastrophe.

"We can get television pictures back from the moon with great clarity but we still can't get our weather warnings to a small town to make sure everyone knows about it," Pearson said in an interview.

Since 1965, the lanky, sandy-haired Pearson has been director of the Severe Storms Forecast Center at the National Weather Service's Kansas City office. Pearson and his staff of 30 meteorologists predict where violent weather will occur in the continental United States and try to alert residents to take shelter.

A weather satellite beams pictures of the nation's weather formations every 14 minutes to Kansas City via Wallops Island, Va. A battery of teletypes provides reports from 134 domestic radar stations almost instantaneously.

"When we issue a tornado warning that means it's very likely a tornado will be spotted in the area," Pearson said. "These often form and disappear within minutes but the trouble is getting people to know about them quickly."

Tornadoes have been spotted in all 48 adjacent states since 1953. An estimated 2,500 persons have died in the tortured spirals of wind and ensuing destruction since weather records have been kept in the nation. Hurricanes, water-borne killers that strike the East and Gulf coasts, have claimed another 1,000 lives.

It is impossible to estimate the number of lives saved by tornado warnings. But Pearson recalled two cases where he has made predictions.

A tornado that raced through the Yazoo City area of western Mississippi last year claimed more than 100 lives. Pearson said that number could have been 100 without the weather warnings.

The other tornado was one that swept through Topeka, Kan., in 1966, killing 17 persons.

"A tornado watch was issued well in advance and the cloud that produced the tornado was tracked," Pearson said. "Spotters were in the right positions and the radio and TV stations interrupted their programming to spread the alarm."

"I think more than 100 persons were saved. In my view, that saving of lives paid for the entire tornado warning system for that year and many years to come."

The forecasting center has been criticized for being hasty in calling for severe weather watches and warnings.

Frigidaire

presents: the Big Idea Refrigerator

What's the big idea? More room in less space. Frigidaire makes it happen by using a super insulation. So efficient it creates a slim wall that means more room inside, less bulk outside.

5-Year Nationwide Protection Plan

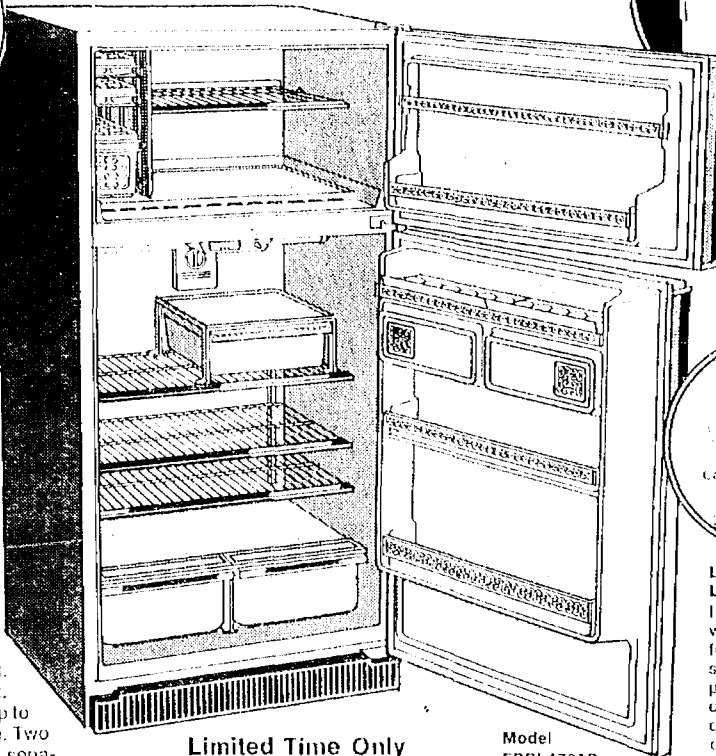

Look into the Frigidaire 5-Year Protection Plan. Backed by General Motors, 1-year Warranty for repair of any defect in the entire Refrigerator, plus a 4-year Protection Plan for repair of any defective or malfunctioning part in the refrigerating system (compressor assembly, receiver-condenser, refrigerating or cooling coils, and inter-connecting tubing) and ABS cabinet liner on models so equipped.

This Frigidaire Refrigerator Has All the Other Features You'd Expect, too

- More room, 17.0 cu. ft. overall with a 4.75 cu. ft. freezer rated to store up to 166 lbs. • Door Storage. Two removable egg servers, separate compartments for Spreads and Cheese 'n Snacks. • Holders. Easy to move, easy to clean behind or beneath.
